Federal Care of Sick Recommended At A. F. L. Meeting

Painters Prepare Resolution Calling for Government Medical Aid

Denver—Federal care of the sick as a part of the Social Security program was asked by the Brotherhood of Painters in a resolution prepared for introduction today at the American Federation of Labor convention.

Federation economists said a study of medical costs for families with incomes between $1,200 and $2,000 a year showed 218 of 1,000 families spent more than $100 for doctors' bills.

"Practically no family with an income of less than $5,000 could bear the costs of a major illness without undergoing hardships," a report of these economists said.

They pointed out one of two methods for removing these "hardships" could be adopted.

1. Health insurance, with employers, employees or government (or all three) paying the premiums. This insurance would pay benefits during illness.

2. Placing all hospitals, clinics and dispensaries in the government's hands, with all physicians and surgeons on the government payroll.

May Propose Study
The resolutions committee, it was learned, probably will propose a government study of health insurance and socialized medicine for the Social Security program.

Other convention developments: Frank Heffley, president of the Colorado Federation of Labor, called William Green, A. F. L. president, a "cream puff who is totally unreliable and is apt to double-cross anyone" in a statement last night.

George Harrison, president of the railway clerks, in an interview, predicted a convention floor fight on the administration wage and hour bill.

The carpenters' battle to keep Charles P. Howard, C. I. O. secretary and president of the International Typographical union, from taking his seat as a convention delegate came to a standstill while the credentials committee was making up its mind when to meet. The carpenters' claim Howard is ineligible because he signed a C. I. O. charter for Pacific coast lumbermen.

Clerical Error in Relief Measure Stalls Action in Badger Senate and House

Senator Harold V. Schoenecker (D), Milwaukee, submitted a resolution asking the governor to amend his call without setting an Oct. 16 deadline, but it was ruled out of order by Lieutenant Governor Henry Gunderson (P), Portage.

Although amended at times to only a mere semblance of the program laid down by Governor La Follette, the relief bill finally emerged yesterday from both houses with only one big change in the administration plan.

While Governor La Follette had intended to distribute the entire fund on a "fire department" basis, the legislature decreed that approximately $1,300,000 should be used for uniform payment of 5 per cent of relief unit costs. The bill thereby assures each county of part of the new revenues.

Catlin Leads Opposition
House passage was accomplished by piece-meal recession on amendments over the legislators had battled spasmodically since Sept. 15. Assemblyman Cornelius Young (D), Milwaukee, a member of the joint compromise committee, steered the measure to adoption with large majorities overriding an opposition led by Assemblyman Mark Catlin (R), Appleton. The vote on the 5 per cent distribution feature was 76 to 14.

While the relief problem moved decorously out of the legislative chambers, another bitter fight started immediately in the assembly and the stage was set for its counterpart in the senate today. Both houses faced action on a resolution providing for sine die adjournment Oct. 16 as a condition for submission of other business by the governor.

Six Subjects Mapped
The resolution, accompanying an executive message this week, also provides that the legislature work 8 hours a day except Sunday and shortens procedure in the handling of bills. The governor outlined six subjects for an amended call.

Administration forces, back by a ruling of Speaker Paul Alfonsi (P), Pence, that a majority vote would prevail, beat down two attempts to amend the resolution to death in the assembly yesterday. The house rejected by votes of 60 to 28 and 54 to 38 efforts of Assemblyman Catlin to strike out portions of the resolution relating to work hours and sine die adjournment.

Drive Halted by Call
The drive toward passage was halted when Assemblyman P. B. McIntyre (R), Lancaster, placed a call on the house and tied up all business for an hour. Adjournment was voted immediately after the call was lifted.

Assemblyman James T. Cavanaugh (D), Antigo, and others of the anti-administration bloc used every parliamentary maneuver at their command to stall the proceedings, although each admitted certain defeat after 14 Farmer-Labor-party members submitted a statement declaring they would vote for the resolution because "it has become apparent that the only possible extension of the call at this time can come through adoption."

"Although I feel that the provision to adjourn sine die Oct. 16 will probably block passage of much needed legislation, we shall vote for it," the statement said. "Under the governor's mandate there is no other way these vital bills can be brought before the legislature."

Assails Governor
Cavanaugh charged the resolution violated every concept of free speech, and contended it was a violation of the corrupt practices act. "The governor," he said, "is building up ammunition for the political band wagon. He doesn't want the legislature to act on his measures. This is not Americanism; it is egoism in the highest degree."

Assemblyman Arthur Hitt (P), Alma, replied that Cavanaugh's charges were untrue. He said the governor was "open to compromise" on extension of the session after Oct. 16 and that the resolution was merely "evidence of cooperation from the legislature."

Assemblyman Charles B. Perry of Wauwatosa, veteran Republican and former speaker, said he could not vote for the resolution because of Speaker Alfonsi's decision that new rules could be adopted on majority vote. Perry contended a two-thirds vote was required.

Citizen's Committee Finds Mental Disease Is Pressing Social Problem

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles discussing the public welfare problem, the report and recommendations of the Governor's Citizens committee, and the proposed reorganization of public welfare administration in Wisconsin. Governor La Follette indicated this week that the public welfare administration problem is an "urgent" one, and that it will receive early attention by the legislature.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—One of the pressing social problems in Wisconsin and elsewhere today is mental disease, a subject of which strangely enough, the average citizen, even the well-informed citizen, knows little, and apparently cares little about.

But this is one of the problems into which the Citizens' committee delved deeply, about which it meditated much, and for which it finally reported a set of recommendations, which if adopted, will effect a complete about face in public policy.

Today, the public, through state, local or county government, intervenes in mental diseases or mental deficiencies only when the disability becomes acute.

That policy, says the Citizens' committee, if continued "will inevitably lead to an enlarged brick and mortar program meaning unending expense" and getting practically nowhere.

As in most other phases of the public welfare problem, public policy in the past has been directed toward attacking the mental disease problem from the rear. Even today the state and county officials entrusted with the care of the mentally diseased are working toward curing situations that have developed. Practically nowhere is there an attempt at early diagnosis, and treatment and training immediately after diagnosis.

Want Early Diagnosis

The Citizens' committee, in its voluminous report, which may ultimately revolutionize public policy toward all public welfare work in the state, declared that "early diagnosis followed by proper training of some mentally deficient persons may result in their becoming useful self-dependent members of society. Neglect may result in their becoming public charges through indigency, or in many cases through delinquency. Therefore, a mental hygiene program should be established which will:

Embrace early detection, effective treatment or training as well as subsequent care or supervision of mentally diseased and mentally deficient persons. Further:

That the program be state sponsored and supported.

That it function within the counties and with the assistance of state personnel and resources, as part of the social security, educational and public health programs.

That a single state agency be made responsible for the development of the program, and for the operation of the two state hospitals for the insane and the two colonies for the mentally deficient.

State Directed

While the committee insisted that the mental hygiene program be state directed and financed, it was also specific in its recommendation that it should operate through individual county psychiatric services, which would be units of the coordinated public welfare administrative system.

Frankly, and boldly, after exhaustive investigations, interviews, and field trips, the committee unfolded its survey of the present status of the mental hygiene problem in Wisconsin, and it is not one to make its citizens puff their chests with pride.

Committee explorations showed, in its finished report at least, widespread and urgent need for modernization and sweeping changes, both from the point of view of those afflicted with mental ailments, and from the point of view of the general social good.

For instance, the committee found, in Wisconsin drug addicts, alcoholics, and venereals are treated at both state hospitals for the insane in the same wards and with the same staffs which care for ordinary mentally diseased patients. In varying degrees of affliction, these patients are herded together in limited quarters, and into surroundings which some hold breed of themselves a sort of madness, called for want of a better name "institutional insanity."

Want Separation

As remedy, the committee recommended separate facilities at both Mendota and Winnebago, locations of state mental institutions, for the housing of chronically disturbed patients, and that thought be given in future expansion programs to a separation of the non-psychotic from the mentally diseased.

And not only is the state system defective, the committee report continues. A serious defect in county asylums is "the antiquated procedure of utilizing jails for the custody of mentally disturbed cases awaiting transfer to the hospital, and above all the delivery of disturbed patients to the hospital by armed officers of the law."

One state superintendent, the committee reported, "expressed the opinion that the curative process is often set back 60 days by such initial handling. Other persons informed on the subject have expressed the opinion that improper handling of the disturbed patient prior to admission to the hospital may leave a permanent imprint upon him which no treatment may erase."

To cure this, the committee recommended that each county set aside space in its asylums for the reception and care of those patients awaiting transfers to state institutions.

More Like Hospitals

Highlights from among the other recommendations of the Citizens' committee:

1. That county asylums for the insane be made more nearly hospitals, where patients may be examined and treated by specialists, and where clinical records may be kept.

2. That the professional staffs for the colonies of the mentally deficient be increased to provide additional physicians and x-ray and laboratory assistants.

3. That additional housing units be built at the colonies and that school facilities be expanded to include academic and manual training available to every inmate who will benefit from them.

4. That the number of farm units for training under supervision and the number of field workers be increased.

5. That each city of 5,000 have opportunity classes for the mentally retarded as part of the regular school program, that consideration be given to the establishment of at least one such class in each rural county, and that state aid be restored to assist such rural classes.

The delicate question of sterilization, permissible under Wisconsin law for designated classes of defectives, was avoided by the committee with the suggestion that attention be given to the latest scientific thought on the subject.

The question of administrative reform will be discussed in a later installment in this series. (The next article will deal with delinquency and corrections.)

Outagamie Among High Counties in Its Farm Income

Farmers Collect About $5,000,000 Annually From Their Lands

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Outagamie county, in addition to its considerable industrial wealth, ranks as one of the most important agricultural counties in the state, both from the standpoint of land use and farm income. The county is included in the first one quarter of the 71 counties in Wisconsin, despite its relatively high urbanization and industrial development.

That's what Walter H. Ebling, senior agricultural statistician, says. Ebling is hired by the state to find out such things for the department of agriculture. Hidden away in one of the wings of the state capitol, he compiles figures on which crop estimates, income, wealth and other forecasts are made by the department for the information of state farmers.

Farmers in Outagamie county annually collect $5,000,000 from the fruits of their acres. Ebling estimates, most of which comes from livestock and livestock products, principally dairy products. Cash crops account for about one fourth of the total.

Income Is High
Whether Outagamie county has more industrious and skillful farmers, or whether nature has endowed their acres with greater fertility, the statistician did not explain, but while Mr. Outagamie County Farmer earns $15 from each acre under cultivation, his neighbor across the line in Brown county gets only $13.

The average Outagamie county farm earns $1400, and the average county farmer farms a plot from 75 to 89 acres in size.

The county ranks 12th in the state in total income, 14th in income per farm, and 12th in income per acre in farms.

That the county has 81 per cent of its total land area in farms, more than the average county, for a total of 409,225 acres, and that 93 per cent of the crop land is utilized in growing grain, food and hay are other facts reported by Ebling.

70,000 Cattle
On farms in the county there are about 70,000 cattle, worth almost $2,000,000, almost 10,000 horses and mules, worth more than $1,000,000, about 2,000 tractors, and 300,000 chickens.

The regional aspect of farm income in Wisconsin was emphasized by Mr. Ebling. Outagamie county, for example, is considered within the eastern portion of the state, which ranks high in agricultural earning power.

"The income per farm is lower in the north and in the central Wisconsin district and parts of Western Wisconsin, in spite of the fact that in some of these areas farms average larger in size than in eastern Wisconsin. The farm income per acre of land actually in farms is highest in the eastern and southeastern districts, and it also is relatively high in the southern district.

"The higher income in the eastern and southeastern part of the state is associated with various factors. This region probably has the highest percentage of tillable land of the better soil types. The agriculture in the area is more intensive than elsewhere, and in general it is quite fully developed. Nearness to mar-

CUT HUGE TANKS ADRIPT IN HEAVY SEAS NEAR SHEBOYGAN

Looking like mammoth "whales" wallowing in a heavy sea, the three tanks shown above were cut adrift Saturday from a tug seven miles east of Sheboygan's harbor on Lake Michigan and towing to the destination of a 1,371-mile journey from Jersey City, N. J., to Whiting, Ind., will be resumed when weather is favorable.

The tanks, each weighing 80 tons and measuring 50 feet in length and 16 feet in diameter, were floated from the east coast through the canals and Great Lakes on their way to Whiting because no boat or flat car is large enough to transport them. The tanks have been in transit about a month and three more will follow upon delivery of those now near Sheboygan.

They will be used by the Standard Oil company of Indiana to distill crude oil and are made of steel plates 50 feet long and 10 feet wide. A tank weighing 400,000 pounds will follow in the wake of the smaller ones. It will be heavier than the statue of Liberty or the dirigible Hindenburg and will contain 600 feet of welded seams.

Pegler Expects Ku-Klux Issue to Die Down Soon

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It is my guess that the Ku-Klux issue will soon die down merely because it takes two to make an argument, and Hugo and the president are smart enough to see that if they keep still the opposition will have to start repeating. Moreover, the opposition, will be talking to itself. After awhile the public will get tired of the repetition of a consistently sour note and, out of annoyance if for no other reason, will say something to the general effect of "Oh, dry up about the Klan."

It seems probable also, that the three elements of the population which were singled out for discrimination and other dirty treatment by the organization to which Hugo gave an oath, will have nothing to fear at his hands as a justice of the supreme court. He is sitting pretty in a well-paid, permanent job, safe from reprisals by his old comrades in the sacred, unfailing bonds of klannishness, and that security is by no means the least attraction to a politician of his type.

If Hugo could have won election to the senate in the first place without joining up, he probably would have held aloof. It seems so from his radio oration. And, on his record, it appears that as soon as the heat was off back there in the '20s and the Klan no longer was in a position to yank him around by the mouth, he permitted himself to take up normal association with those late untouchables who came within his professional and social zone.

He's Now Independent

Of The Klan's Anger

So we have for assurance on this score the fact that he is now independent of the Klan's anger and the wrath of all the carbon copies of that organization which are now springing up around the country, plus an apparent lack of serious personal religious and racial intolerance, plus one thing more. Another assurance is the fact that, although he did not denounce but merely renounced the Klan, he did denounce with considerable emphasis the selling points by which the Klan was peddled to native-born, white Protestants. He could have been less slippery, but after all, there is something to chew on in the paragraph which he said: "At no meeting of any organization, social, political or fraternal, have I ever indicated the slightest departure from my steadfast faith in the unfettered right of every American to follow his conscience in matters of religion. I have no sympathy with any organization or group which anywhere or at any time arrogates to itself the un-American power to interfere in the slightest degree with complete religious freedom. No words have ever been or will ever be spoken by me, directly or indirectly, indicating that any native or foreign-born person in our free country should or could be restricted in his right to worship according to the dictates of his conscience."

Against the truth or honesty of these statements his Klan oath must be considered. If he never had any sympathy and so forth, why did he join the Klan, and if the Klan wasn't opposed to racial and religious tolerance why did he quit it? Nevertheless, one consideration taken with another gives a feeling that on these matters Hugo will try to be decent from now on.

Doubts More Lively

On Fitness Question

As to his fitness otherwise to serve on the big court the doubts are more lively. You have to form an opinion of his honesty by his conduct during the confirmation fuss and by remembering that, for cheap political advancement, he took an oath to an outfit dedicated to propositions which he now declares that he always has abhorred. You have to bear in mind, too, that, like the president himself, he has been reckless in his harassment of people whom he was determined to get or at least determined to humiliate. There are other rights besides those of religious and racial freedom for which people sometimes must appeal to the supreme court, and Hugo may not be very fastidious in his regard for those rights if they seem to obstruct the measures for which he has been selected as yes-man. As to those there is no assurance beyond his general oath and his conscience.

Anyway, the wheel has come a full turn, hasn't it? For years, Hearst invaded the private affairs of unfortunate private citizens, printing their diaries and letters. Then Hugo started rumbling through Hearst's private correspondence, and Hearst yelled bloody murder, while Hugo chortled. And finally, a Hearst paper once removed dug up the record of Hugo's klannishness and he, in his turn, squawked about a concerted campaign to fan the flames of prejudice.

Pegler

Court May Order Slot Machines Destroyed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Orland S. Loomis, Wisconsin attorney general, today ruled that slot machines seized by county sheriffs may be destroyed by the court and that owners of such contraband are powerless to prevent such destruction.

The opinion came, Loomis' office said, as the result of actions in several counties by owners of seized machines to prevent their destruction. That question recently arose in Eau Claire county, where after a raid the sheriff of the county took slot machines into his possession which the court, after owners pleaded guilty and were fined, ordered to be destroyed.

Recommend City Pay $6,500 for Lieber Property

The public grounds and buildings committee tonight will recommend that the city offer the Lieber Lumber company $6,500 for property on Franklin street to be used as a new street with the stipulation that the city will not assess the adjoining property for benefits and damages for repairs until the street is paved.

The committee also will recommend that $1,010 paid to the city by Gertrude Heibel for the old Zuehlke home at 1225 W. Prospect avenue be returned. The property was purchased with the understanding that the house could be moved from the property. Since that time it has been discovered that the home could not be moved without destroying valuable trees.

Says President's Talk Start for Peace in World

Made Vocal Feelings of Outraged Humanity, Lawrence States

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Franklin Roosevelt made at Chicago this week the speech which the whole world has been waiting for several months to hear from the lips of a president of the United States.

Lawrence

The moral forces of all mankind have lacked in the crisis of war and revolution a spokesman who could express in explicit and unequivocal terms the philosophy of peace-loving peoples.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech is a masterpiece of statement, forceful without either bombast or threat. It is penetrating and incisive because it is an accurate indictment.

Not since the president's speech at Buenos Aires, defending the principles of democracy and international goodwill, which this correspondent termed the best he had ever delivered, has there been an address of such great international significance.

There will be people who will be apprehensive lest the speech might have to be backed up by physical force some day to make good its declarations, but there are also people who have felt for years that the moral forces of the world in the cause of peace have never been mobilized effectively and that some day such a mobilization by a spokesman who was fearless would awaken the conscience of all civilized nations.

Japan has done a barbaric thing. Mr. Roosevelt has not used such exact words, but he has conveyed the same thought, Italy and Germany have despoiled Spain and violated the territorial integrity of that country. Mr. Roosevelt didn't mention Germany or Italy, but his speech plainly condemned them just the same.

There is evidence from a reading of the speech that Mr. Roosevelt pondered a long time before he decided to do it. He had, no doubt, been urged to speak the mind of the American people on the horrors of the far eastern raids on innocent people. In these dispatches, a month ago, reference was made in a critical vein to the fact that the United States government had talked a lot about withdrawing her nationals from war areas and staying in China at their own risk, but had not expressed in forceful tones a real protest against the barbarism of the air raids.

But the president's speech is even more than the believers in the world press idea dared to hope. It was thought Mr. Roosevelt would hesitate to speak boldly and that he would deal with the subject in rather abstract fashion. He has come out plainly and bluntly.

The words of Mr. Roosevelt, however, come with refreshing vigor to a world which had begun to despair of any leadership. Britain and France should be invigorated by the Chicago address. The league of nations assembly meeting in Geneva should be encouraged by it, too. It is by far the most useful and constructive utterance on international affairs since the President Wilson's speeches to the allied powers during the European war. Here are two paragraphs from Mr. Roosevelt's speech which will echo around the world:

"Without a declaration of war, and without warning or justification of any kind, civilians, including women and children, are being ruthlessly murdered with bombs from the air. In time of so called peace, ships are being attacked and sunk by submarines without cause or notice. Nations are fomenting and taking sides in civil warfare in nations that have never done them any harm. Nations claiming freedom for themselves deny it to others.

"Innocent peoples and nations are being cruelly sacrificed to a greed for power and supremacy which is devoid of all sense of justice and humane consideration."

What can be done about it? This is a practical question which will

For the 'Morning After' When Your Head Feels Like A BALLOON

Here's Quick, Sure Relief
Yes, when you have overindulged and your head aches, your stomach is upset, and you feel "dead on your feet," do what millions of people do to end that terrible feeling. Simply mix 1 1/2 oz. of a glass of Pluto Water with 4 oz. of a glass of hot water and drink. In one hour or less a complete bowel flush will be attained. All excess poisons in the intestinal tract will be carried away. When this happens, your head clears, your stomach settles, your energy returns. You feel as good as new. Pluto Water is a non-habit-forming saline water. Get either the 25c or the large 50c size, which contains three times the quantity, from your druggist. Have a bottle handy, so that when you eat or drink "not wisely but too well," you can take this pleasant, sure, quick way to feel like new in one hour or less.

PLUTO WATER

be asked by millions of persons in America who have head the Roosevelt address. The key is to be found in the speech itself:

Concerted Effort
"The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy and instability from which there is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality."

Does this mean war and physical force to back up threats of "concerted effort"? Not a bit of it. There are influences on some occasions more powerful than cannon, more devastating than mobilization of armies and navies, influences which imprint on the dictatorships and autocratic governments of mankind the label of barbarism. In the intercourse of nations, the stigma of barbarism hurts. When peace-loving peoples come to ostracize from their midst the governments which do violence to all humane principles, there is put into motion the forces that ultimately shame nations into a change of policy. If the democracies of the world stick together and put a "moral quarantine" on the leper governments of the world, there will be a sudden realization on the part of the peoples living under those governments that world "trade", world intercourse and world opinion shun them as the enemies of mankind.

There are remedies. They come out of the spontaneous action of peoples in Democratic countries who wish to make their protests effective. A great start has been made. The president of the United States had made vocal the feelings of an outraged humanity. No government can live long in the modern world against the United States, Great Britain and France when working closely together and using not physical force or threats of force but quiet and far-reaching moral forces which have again and again in world history brought civilization to its senses through concerted expression, concerted voice and concerted pressure for the sanctity of treaties and for peace.

BOYCOTT FOR JAPAN?

Things are getting serious for Japan not only in a military way, but in a business way, as a result of her ruthless procedure in China. She has got in bad with almost the whole world, but especially with Great Britain and America, her two best customers. The British are getting excited about it. Liberals and Laborites have been urging the government to more drastic action, in protecting British rights, and in addition are preaching an anti-Japanese boycott throughout their empire. They raise the slogan, "Don't buy Japanese goods." Such a movement is spreading informally to America.

The British Empire normally buys 28 per cent of Japanese exports and the United States about 24 per cent. Thus the two nations together have bought more than half of Japan's great volume of exports. It is mainly these sales on which the country depends normally for domestic prosperity and governmental expenses. She needs her export trade particularly to help finance the expensive war she has started in China. The demand for Japanese goods has fallen off already in the English-speaking countries and elsewhere, as a result of the general condemnation of the Japanese war and its slaughter of non-combatants. Even an informal boycott of Japanese goods might bankrupt the Tokyo treasury and, after the first frenzied push, slow up the war. Here is a danger on which the Japanese statesman do not seem to have reckoned.

SQUEEZING THE DUCE

Europe seems to be engaging in a squeeze play, to force Italy out of Spain. The play is called from Geneva, where the League of Nations shows signs of new life. A League resolution proposes to end the non-intervention policy and throw Spain open to the uncontrolled entrance of foreign troops and supplies, unless Italy's Fascist troops are withdrawn. This would mean opening the French frontier for the use of the anti-Fascist nations, particularly France, Britain, and Russia. Over the French border they could pour troops, munitions and provisions to aid the Spanish government.

Italy and Germany, too, could pour in fresh help from other directions. But apparently the latter would be handicapped in the contest. France is said to have the most effective army on the Continent. Britain has the most effective fleet, and her rearmament has proceeded so rapidly that she has strong land and air forces now, with national sentiment ready for action. Russia's fighting power is uncertain but great.

This sort of strategy might miscarry, starting the general European war that has been feared for so long. It seems unlikely, however, that Mussolini and Hitler today would dare move against such a powerful coalition, backed as it would be by so many of the smaller nations of Europe.

A SHOOTING DENTIST

Over in Midland, Michigan, lives Hardy Dr. Hardy, a dentist, whose trusty rifle broke up a gang of bank robbers.

It is not a mere matter of smug satisfaction that suggests that Dr. Hardy is more or less an American type.

It is the Dr. Hardy's all over this country, whether leveling rifles or tipping off policemen, who have made the travels of the underworld so difficult and hopeless.

Dr. Hardy had read of bank holdups and formed a firm conviction about the worthiness of those who participated. He wasn't much to bluster. He told no crows on a street corner what he intended to do. Quiet men, like quiet streams, run deep and purposefully.

Because he killed one robber outright, seriously wounded another, and captured the third, the public would be happy to pin a hero medal on the Doctor's chest. Pin it, by all means! Neither shall there be deduction in any wise for the Doctor's steady nerves and accurate eye.

But do not overlook the fact that America has many Dr. Hardys, and they, after all, are its saving grace.

GIRLS' FOOD

A recent study of office workers, made by an insurance company, shows business girls getting sensible about food and weight. Of the 1,286 feminine office workers who furnished detailed reports of their health records and habits, only 58 had followed any reducing regime during the preceding 12 months and only 75 were planning to do anything of the sort in the near future.

More than 700 were within normal weight range for their height and age, 147 were 15 pounds or more heavier than they should be according to present standards, and 392 were underweight. Too much fuss has been made about weight in recent years because of the fad for slimmness. Many women almost ruined health or nervous system by following reducing diets without regard to their own physical needs. It is a good thing the ladies are eating more normally. It need not mean piling up the pounds, either.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW

Down the gangplank of the liner Empress of Britain, docked the other day at New York City pier, there walked Lord Mottistone, the Right Hon. John Edward Bernard Seely, once Major General in His Majesty's forces and hero of a famous Canadian cavalry charge in the first battle at the Somme. Said he, discussing prospects of a war in Europe with newspapermen:

"There is not a general staff in Europe that believes today its Nation could win, or gain political or economic advantage from a war."

Lord Mottistone, therefore, does not expect a war in Europe is imminent.

His statement makes sense. Wars are fought for gain, of one kind or another. European powers are, at least, no better off than we. England apparently is prospering. Germany and Italy are nursing monetary headaches. Russia may be ready to fight but the continuing "blood purges" in that land do not indicate that the sort of harmony exists there that is necessary if a war is to be conducted successfully. And England's seeming prosperity is due, in no small measure, to the billions in wealth that are being pumped into feverish rearming activity.

We are no better off, in all truth. Our national debt is around 37 billions of dollars. We spent more than 22 billions of dollars in the last Great War. Another experience like the last might prove to be too expensive for us unless we were willing to risk the collapse of our Government's credit.

The last war was too expensive for all the peoples who participated in it. No one gained anything.

Until some Power or combination of Powers believe there is better than an even chance to recoup losses, it is not likely that war will break out. Lord Mottistone takes a hardheaded view of the situation.

A THREAT UNCOVERED

It has come to our attention, in glancing through the women's pages of the newspapers, that a minor revolt against an American institution is being organized.

Three times, in as many days, ladies who conduct columns on cookery have extolled the virtues of squash pie and have backed up their claims with recipes for a dish that is, at best, only a pale substitute for the glorious pie that is an American tradition, one made of pumpkin. One of the ladies did have the grace to include instructions for the fashioning of a pumpkin pie, a pie that would have brought blushes to the faces of our grandmothers, a pie bedight with marshmallow, of all things!

This is serious, and it deserves the earnest attention of all males. It may be possible to acquire a taste for squash pie. We have known men who have professed a liking for it, but we consider them suspect.

Squash is a useful vegetable. We admit the fact. But it does not belong in a pie.

The pumpkin pie season is here and it is our considered opinion that a person who advocates a substitute for this bulwark of our Republic will bear watching. These subversive influences must be checked!

WE NEED STANDARD LAWS

Agitation for enactment of standard drivers' license laws in all States was given new impetus during the recent meetings in Cleveland of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators. Thirty-seven states were represented.

The laws are needed. They would reduce the number of incapable drivers on our highways. They would weed out the drivers whose recklessness has been proved. They would make it impossible for persons whose abilities in the operation of motor vehicles have failed to impress examiners in one state, to cross the state line and to secure the authority that licenses them to menace the lives of all persons they may meet while they are behind a wheel.

The time is coming when uniform licensing laws will be adopted by all the states. Public opinion, at last thoroughly aroused by the toll that is taken when incompetent, reckless and drunk drivers are permitted to operate motor vehicles, will force even the most laggard legislatures to get into line.

Sydney Island, between Fiji and Hawaii, is noted for its herds of ravenous cats, wild offspring of 150 felines introduced by a planter to combat rats which destroyed the copra.

Marras wine may be used in cooking light meats such as chicken and veal. It does not blend as well, however, with beef.

Onion salt is milder than fresh onions. It is excellent for use in gravies, salad dressings and sauces.

Skunk and black fox are popular trimmings for coats and suits this fall.

I was almost a bright morning yesterday — we are on the way to work and, as we drive past the high school, a lad on his bike signals for a left turn, thus giving me an opportunity to know what is coming. . . . "They're getting better," says the fella with me, and I nod agreeably. . . . then, without warning, another lad on a bike flashes out in front of me and across the street, being saved largely by my brake-nervous foot. . . . so the good deed was cancelled off. . . . but it is the first time that the score is 0-0 in several days. . . .

Another fella asked me yesterday whether this was the open season for bumping off the bikers. It isn't, but when they go down the street three abreast, I sometimes wonder but what some sort of open season might be a good idea.

Racine, which is bicycle-mad, and has half as many bicycles as Milwaukee despite the proportional difference in population, is getting at the problem by licensing and by a squad of youthful bicycle cops. The idea is reported to be working.

Lack of lights, reckless riding, and other offenses are watched out for by the bike enforcement squad.

It's an idea for Appleton and possibly some of the other cities in this area, although I have not heard as many complaints from the adjacent communities.

Introducing Secretary of the Interior Ickes to the crowd at the Chicago bridge dedication yesterday as "Secretary of the Treasury" must have been somewhat embarrassing to Mayor Kelly and must be classified with Lou Gehrig's mention of the wrong breakfast food on the radio broadcast some time back.

But Honest Harold somewhat revealed the way things are in the treasury when he commented that maybe Mr. Morgenthau would just as soon that Mr. Ickes WAS secretary of the treasury once in a while.

They tell me that FDR announced that the "American people hate wah." We knew that Mr. Roosevelt hated "wah" — he told us so once.

But it's nice to know that the rest of us are wah haters, too. I was feeling a little on the outside of things until Mr. Roosevelt included me in.

The president's speech was supposed to have been given serious consideration abroad.

We are still waiting for a presidential mention of Hugo Black to give serious consideration to in this country.

If any mention is ever made, I'm willing to bet that it will be not a defense of Hugo but an attack on somebody else.

THE BEST GIFT

"I wish I had a gift!" she said;
"Some little gift of song or story
So I, to keep me comforted,
Might give expression to Life's glory."

And then, deep in her splendid eyes,
There shone the light of constancy.
Her gift for Friendship was the prize
She gave that afternoon to me.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NOTES ON OLD GENTLEMAN'S CURSE

In the medical profession it is more or less customary to acknowledge the deference paid by a colleague who refers a patient to you. Physicians or specialists who are meticulous about this do not say just Thank you for referring John Jones but make the message the occasion for reporting to the colleague something of the findings, the opinion arrived at or advice given Mr. Jones. Also, there are in the profession a good many lunatics who are apparently insensible to the amenities of this intercourse. These barbarians, perhaps presuming to impress the plodding practitioners they compete with, send a printed or an imitation engraved card or slip which vouchsafes that the eminent one, so darn busy he hasn't time to bandy words with pikers, has consented to treat one J. Jones, and, tho the formal card does not say so, ominously implying that it is the last the goofy practitioner will ever hear or see of that patient!

My position is anomalous. I refer correspondents to physicians or specialists everywhere every day. Altho I am glad to learn from these physicians or specialists that such correspondents have actually consulted them, I see no reason for and do not expect colleagues to go to this trouble, unless perhaps some features of the given case are of extraordinary interests and may merit discussion in this column for the benefit of other folk.

A letter from a skilled urologist to whom I have referred many correspondents who inquired about the modern transurethral prostatic resection contains these notes:

Mr. F.'s case was one of prostatic hypertrophy with partial retention. I had hoped to do a transurethral resection, but owing to a complication which precluded the satisfactory manipulation of cystoscopic instruments I had to do a one-stage prostatectomy instead (this is the ordinary operation). The patient left the hospital in 19 days, happy and . . . (free from his embarrassing symptoms).

Letter from another urologist, eastern man (the first is a west coast man):

As illustrated by the case of Mr. F., the prostate is too large to be removed by transurethral resection with the cutting and coagulating currents now at our disposal. Some urologists say it requires too much time to do the work completely, but two hours work is not too long, when it reduces the post-operative hospitalization from six weeks to six days.

And here is an interesting letter from an old gentleman or at any rate a gentleman:

My case was enlarged prostate. I was operated on (the old way) Dec. 10, 1931. In hospital seven weeks. Suffered much pain. In bed a month when I went home. For a year the drainage opening in belly did not close. Jan. 3, 1933, you told of the new electro-surgical transurethral method. At your suggestion I consulted (urologist) skilled in the new method. He operated on me March 12. I spent only three days in hospital and had no pain or trouble whatsoever. The drainage opening closed in a few days and I'm a happy man once more.

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"
If October 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

If you leave important things to Chance this day, the results probably will be disappointing. This is a day that required systematically planning and concentration to get results.

Fickleness, noticeably among women, may cause many acrimonious discussions. Doing things on the spur of the moment, is likely to be a waste of valuable time or material. Principles cannot be ignored, nor unwritten laws broken, with impunity this day, and it might be well for you to remember this, for you may be tempted to do one or the other. Some sudden thought perhaps will lead to your remembering something you mislaid, neglected to do, or something said that needs correcting.

Married and engaged couples, and those who are in love, might do well to take some joke, at their expense, good naturedly this day.

If a woman and October 7 is your birthday, if you will realize that patience is a virtue you must possess in order to be happy, your chances for happiness are apt to be greatly enhanced. You ought to be very efficient in either domestic or office work. A gift for entertaining should make you a favorite socially and win for you a great deal of admiration. You probably love excitement, so anything that gives promise of being decidedly adventurous may cause you to take needless risks. Miscellaneous, theatrical, musical or artistic work may provide the means by which your ambition will be realized. Marriage perhaps will fill your life with many varying and happy interests.

The child born on October 7 has a mind of its own generally, and can be more easily prevailed upon than forced to do a thing. After adolescence, this child's powers of perception will increase greatly. In time a great amount of good fortune seems bound to make this youngster a very important person.

If a man and October 7 is your natal day, bright prospects appear to be ahead of you. Good work on your part ought to pay you handsomely. As an astronomer, botanist, engineer, lawyer, salesman, doctor, clergyman, author, journalist or manufacturer your results should be most gratifying.

Successful People Born on October 7:
Kate J. Bateman, actress.
Bronson Howard, dramatist.
Eleanor Kirk Ames, author.
Robert Dinsmoor, poet.
George Duffield, clergyman.
William Billings, hymn composer.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—No less than an 18-karat bride shyly confessed to Mitzi Green that a song she sang in "Babes in Arms" probably was responsible for her marriage.

It was "Where or When," and the excited girl explained that she and her young man fell in love the night they heard Mitzi introduce the song.

This "I confess" mood crept over them when they visited the Versailles club on the honeymoon, and as Miss Green is starting there now they told her the story and asked for a repeat. The Mitzi one says the role of match-maker, which she has never played before, is simply dandy.

The Scots on Broadway at least, have been outdistanced. It appears now that the lightest man in New York is a British actor. . . . He sends his laundry back to England every week for his wife to do. . . . However, don't waste your pity on her. . . . She is wealthy and owns a string of laundries.

They say it was his divorce that inspired Lew Brown to write "That Old Feeling". . . . Bobbing around town he occasionally ran into her. . . . His emotional reactions after such an encounter prompted the tune.

The pincapple juice stands on Broadway aren't so numerous as they were six weeks ago. . . . Our favorite taxi salesman came in today with a favor to ask. . . . He is a purple which, he explained, he had saved especially for us. This was wonderful except for two things—we don't like purple, and in another box we discovered at least 20 others just like the one he had "saved."

There is a Turk in 85th street who teaches dogs to "purr". . . . However, he admits he has never been able to teach a kitten to bark.

In her new play Lillian Gish appears in a pair of bloomers, 1890 style, and rides a bicycle. The play is a dip-bucker—that is, it opens in 1937, goes back to 1890, and comes back to the present.

Probably the most unusual bar in New York is the Tuscany, on Murray Hill, which has murals depicting the New York of Tomorrow. The streets are all wide boulevards in the Park Avenue manner, with the side streets elevated, thus eliminating traffic problems.

This is Mickey Walker, the Clay Bulldog of the ring? He's shelved his gloves for the raiment of a nightclub entertainer and is billed as a Song and Dance man.

Sheila Barrett is this department's favorite name. However, she is the slowest reader on earth. It took her nearly four years to finish "Anthony Adverse" and by Christmas she expects to start "Gone With the Wind."

Comic Strip Characters Used to Teach Reading

Laramie, Wyo.—(P)—Comic strips now are offered Laramie school children to whet their appetites for knowledge.

Mickey Mouse, says A. A. Slade, superintendent of public schools, is America's No. 1 public hero.

"The children know him as a movie star, a comic strip hero, and so they have a warm interest in him," Slade says.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The brilliant, biting style of examination of witnesses that made Hugo Black, the senator, famous and feared, probably will find little outlet in the supreme court.

Even before the klan issue arose, veteran hands around the court predicted that the elder justices would make short work of any efforts by the vigorous ex-senator to tangle attorneys in their own tales.

Black was relentless in examining recalcitrant witnesses before senate committees. Corporation executives who had survived hours of deal-cross-examination in court to wild-eyed bewilderment under the fire of Senator Black and his colleagues on the lobby investigating committee.

In court, witnesses are protected by their counsel and by certain rules of decorum. But in a senate committee all bars are down and the witness is at the mercy of senators who act as judge, prosecuting attorney and jury. They make their own rules of procedure as they go and show little mercy when in pursuit of evidence to support the legislation for which they are drumming.

His Style Cramped

It was in that field, and in his earlier experience as police judge and prosecuting attorney, that Black learned the art that made him the most savage examiner since the late Senator Walsh of Montana, who conducted the Teapot Dome investigation.

Not when the justice begins his work on the court, his field for examination will be hemmed in on a dozen fronts. First off, he won't be examining witnesses. He will be examining skilled attorneys. He will not be searching witnesses for facts, but will be questioning attorneys about points of law. For in the Supreme Court there is little digging out of bare facts. Facts of the case all must have been determined in the lower courts. The Supreme Court, save in rare instances, deals only with how the law applies to the facts.

It is true that attorneys are occasionally subjected to grueling examination by members of the court. But often a member of the court will come to the rescue of an attorney being picked to bits by another member.

Court Discipline

Justice Brandeis delights in pulling beleaguered attorneys out of the claws of some of the conservative members of the court. If he feels that an attorney is being led into an unfair position through questioning by one of the justices, he will say unhesitatingly: "If I were counsel, I should not answer that question."

Again, a justice may baffle an attorney with a demand for a citation of cases to support some obscure point. Justices Stone, Butler and others, liberals and conservatives alike, may cut in to suggest: "Does the attorney recall the case of Anderson vs. The United States in which it was held—so and so."

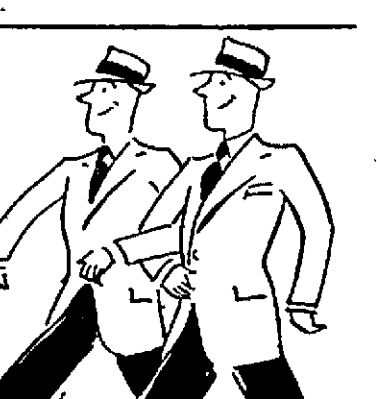

Or one justice may take a more direct course by shooting the answer straight back at the justice who asked the question.

Now Black comes to the court skilled as an examiner after facts. But even his best friends would not say he is so quick on the trigger in law as his veteran colleagues. And court observers suspect the elderly justices will be laying for him if he seems to get out of bounds.

quickly if they read about familiar things.

So Mickey Mouse, Minnie Mouse, Donald Duck, Benjamin Bull and a host of lesser stars of the comic strips will be brought to the class rooms as supplementary reading material."

Criticism Is an Aid to Progress, Trever Declares

Strong Opposition Party "Healthy," Lawrence Professor Says

"There is nothing more necessary to the health and sanity of any society, government, institution or individual than free criticism," Dr. A. A. Trever, professor of ancient and European history at Lawrence college, said in his address at Memorial chapel yesterday morning.

Speaking on "The Function of Criticism," Dr. Trever said that although it is an asset to progress, few societies have recognized it as such. He pointed to the difficulties with which sincere, intelligent critics always have met.

He warned of the present tendency to be intolerant towards critics, declaring: "If we wish to preserve our democracy we must keep free the cleansing winds of criticism."

"Stressing the beneficial influence of a strong opposition party on the health of a democracy, Dr. Trever said that a big majority is always dangerous because it is less tolerant of criticism. "American political health needs a realignment on the basis of liberalism and conservatism," he stated.

Because they stifle criticism, autocratic governments of the world are weaker, the professor said. "They eliminate the very means by which they can correct their errors and retain their sense of balance."

Roosevelt Speech Is Seen Abroad as Announcement Of New American Policy

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt, in the view of other nations, has announced a new American policy of active cooperation to establish world peace. The president, in his Chicago speech yesterday, indicted aggression and treaty breakers and asserted "America actively engages in the search for peace."

Foreign nations today were quick to point to the address as intimation that the United States is ready to abandon her policy of neutrality, and to support world action to maintain peace. But they disagreed as to its feasibility.

League of Nations spokesmen at Geneva considered the speech a timely spur to league plans to summon signatories to the nine power treaty into consultation to deal with the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Britain's cabinet met to consider both the Spanish and Oriental war, considering the president's words to be an offer of cooperation in ending at least the Far Eastern conflict.

Germany's foreign office, through its official newspaper, however, wanted to know exactly to which nations and treaties the president referred.

German Position

If he wishes to take the initiative in improving world conditions, the German foreign office article said, the president should determine whether he "possesses strength enough actually to make justice triumphant in the world."

The newspaper warned the president to remember the "shipwreck" of President Wilson when he sought to safeguard peace for all time through the league of nations.

Japan warned officially that peace may be "difficult to maintain" if demands of the nations which "have not" colonies and raw materials are ignored.

The two capitals, Madrid and Nanking, that are fighting enemies on opposite sides of the world viewed the president's words as threats to their foes.

The socialist newspapers of Valencia, seat of the Spanish government, rang with praise for "this mighty opinion" and rejoiced at the weight they expected it would carry in Geneva.

Mr. Roosevelt's entire speech was spread on the front pages of Madrid newspapers without comment but with the headlines "Americans Want Peace: Roosevelt Energetically Condemns Policy of Invasion and Fascist Blackmail," "Roosevelt Accuses Provocative Nations."

In Nanking, a spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government declared the speech was "gratifying to China as evidence that America is emerging from isolationism and neutrality."

"Especially welcome," he said, "is Mr. Roosevelt's implied condemnation of Japan when he said 'without warning or justification civilians are being ruthlessly murdered.'"

"We understand why the United States desires to avoid this (Sino-Japanese) war but isolationism is not the way. China agrees with the president's statement that peace-loving nations should strive in concert to halt treaty violations."

"But this must be done before it is too late. China hopes American public opinion soon will crystallize in some definite form, such as the enforcement of sanctions."

Britain's View

Great Britain, taking the president's words as an offer of cooperation in the Far East, sought a formula to give force to his idea to "quarantine" the "contagions" of war.

The cabinet, believing it had at least moral support of the United States, weighed emergency measures to stifle threats to peace in the Orient and in Europe where the "international" civil war is the most immediate concern.

The Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, German foreign office organ, said:

"Mr. Roosevelt talked in very general terms about the sacredness

Roosevelt Speech Helps League in Far Eastern War

Nation Expected to Throw Full Moral Support To Geneva

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt's call for "concerted endeavors" in the interest of world peace paved the way today for American support of the League of Nations in its efforts to halt the undeclared war between Japan and China.

A high authority expressed this view in interpreting the president's vigorous statement of foreign policy at Chicago yesterday as a determined move to mobilize world opinion against what Mr. Roosevelt termed the prevailing "reign of terror" and international lawlessness.

There were strong indications the United States government would uphold the league's stand on the Sino-Japanese conflict at least to the extent that it would throw its full moral support behind league action.

The league advisory committee at Geneva approved a resolution yesterday recommending that signatories of the 9-power pact to preserve China's territorial integrity meet as soon as possible. The proposal came before the league assembly today.

Accuses Japan

The resolution called Japan guilty of violating the 9-power treaty, the Boxer protocol for the protection of foreigners in China, and the Briand-Kellogg pact outlawing war.

In this respect it was strikingly like one section of Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement at Chicago. He said some military actions were "definite violations" of agreements. He specified the league of Nations covenant and the 9-power treaty as having been violated.

While the president's address was so broad as to apply to aggression in any part of the world and while he specifically criticized nations "taking part in civil wars in nations that have never done them any harm," its principal effect was regarded here as applying to the Far Eastern conflict.

The president named no countries specifically, but it was apparent his remarks covered not only the Sino-Japanese trouble but also interference by other European countries in the Spanish civil war.

No Hint on Plans

Considerable significance was attached to Mr. Roosevelt's description of conditions as an "epidemic of world lawlessness" and his hint that the system of quarantine applied to disease epidemics should be adopted by peaceful nations to prevent the spread of "lawlessness."

There was no indication in his speech, however, nor was there any suggestion in official quarters here that he contemplated joining in any forcible action to stop Japanese military operations in China. Neither do responsible officials believe they referred to a possible proposal for an international police force.

Some well-informed persons expressed the belief that what Mr. Roosevelt had in mind was a "quarantine" by aroused world opinion.

Senator Thomas (D-Utah) said Mr. Roosevelt's "understanding of world conditions as they exist today is not only correct but is so wise and so safe anything he might do as a result of that understanding may be relied upon as being the best thing for the American people and the people of the world at large."

Representative Fish (R-NY) said the address "may be interpreted by some as an act of peace, but it was virtually a call to war."

"If we follow the peace policy enunciated by the president and police either China or Spain," Fish said, "we will be at war within 60 days. Fortunately the congress refused point blank to give the president the power to determine the aggressor nation (in the neutrality law) or we would be at war today with Japan and possibly with Italy and Germany."

Take No Action on Post Office Bid

Problem Will be Brought Before Council at Tonight's Meeting

No action has been taken by government officials on the Home Mutual Insurance company's proposal to purchase the old post office for $15,000, according to a wire received here by Congressman George J. Schneider. Action may be taken Thursday. Today Fred F. Wettengel, with the consent of Mayor Goodland sent a wire to Washington asking that action on bids be delayed until the matter could be brought up again. He will address the council tonight.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., said this noon that Mr. Wettengel's action was on his own initiative but that he would bring the telegram before the council at tonight's meeting for consideration.

At last week's meeting, aldermen voted 2 to 3 on Alderman Steinhauser's motion against the purchase of the building by the city. It had been suggested that the city buy the structure and convert it into a city hall or police station.

Health Questionnaires Sent To Parents by School Nurse

Believing that physical defects and the health of the child seriously affect his ability to study, school nurses this year are sending health questionnaires to parents in an effort to compile accumulative records which will be placed on file in the nurses' office.

Illnesses such as scarlet fever in early childhood sometimes leave lasting defects if not given proper attention, Miss Mary Orison, one of the school nurses, said. Instead of trying to serve a group, we are trying to individualize the child to meet his individual need, she said.

The health of the child and his work in school are closely related. The nurses are trying, through the questionnaires, to get a picture of the child's early life, his health background, the status of his home life and various other information which will help the nurses and the teachers to form a better impression of the child's needs.

As an example, Miss Lina Johnson, the other school nurse, told of a girl entering high school who was listless and failed to make her grades. It was discovered that the pupil's vision was impaired 90 per cent. Glasses were secured for her and the child finished school an honor student. She is now working her way through a Wisconsin college.

Reports Confidential

There are many other cases where, because defects or chronic illnesses were discovered by the nurses and corrected, the child involved greatly improved his school work and became an apt student. Parents are being urged to cooperate and return the questionnaires carrying the required information which will be confidential.

Pupils from the kindergarten to the sixth grade in both public and parochial schools are examined by the nurses each year and records are on file at the school office. If defects or diseases are discovered, nurses recommend that the children be taken to a doctor. Suspected contagion is reported to the health officer.

Nurses are kept busy every day making direct contacts with parents in homes to overcome prejudices and in making efforts to have children taken to doctors. If a child is out of school three days, a call is made by one of the nurses to ascertain the cause.

Tuberculin Tests

Tuberculin tests were taken of all pupils in the city last year and a follow up program will be conducted this term. Plans are also being made to organize a diphtheria prevention program.

In addition to her other duties, Miss Orison also teaches a home hygiene and care of the sick class for high school senior girls. The class is now studying community health topics. Themes on the city water plant, the sewage plant, special schools, health department, recreation, the hospital, and dairy products have been assigned.

Projects are being started in all of the grade schools and will be finished May 1, the day set aside in the nation as child health day. The children will study lighting and sanitation in the schools and will prepare themes on ways of improving their own rooms. Posters also will be made.

Department statisticians reported meat prices led the increase, jumping 46.9 per cent over comparative prices for 1932.

They took the 1932-33 three-year average to get a comparison with normal times. With this average as 100, food prices rose generally from 66.7 on Sept. 15, 1932 to 63.8 last Sept. 14. The butcher's charges leaped from 75.8 to 111.4.

The department said the average price of sliced bacon last Sept. 14—44.9 cents a pound—was 90 per cent higher than in 1932 and almost 10 per cent higher than last year.

The statistics showed that pork chops, figured at 41.2 cents a pound, cost 69.5 per cent more than in 1932 and were 4.5 per cent up from last year.

Other increases over 1932 prices were sirloin steaks, 36.5 per cent; round steak, 41.7 per cent; rib roast, 42.7 per cent; chuck roast, 49.5 per cent; sliced ham, 48.3 per cent; leg of lamb, 34.5 per cent; roasting chickens, 47.8 per cent.

Butter cost 49.1 per cent more last month than in 1932, cheese was up 20.7 per cent, and delivered fresh milk was 20 per cent higher.

Kramer Retains Commission Job

Reappointed as President At Meeting of Kimberly Village Board

Kimberly—Joseph Kramer, whose term expired as president of the water commission was reappointed at the village board meeting Monday evening. Henry Williams also had his application in for the office.

Two petitions for sidewalks were read and accepted by the board. They will be laid on S. John street and S. Sidney street by E. G. Piette, Appleton, who is now working in the village and up to Oct. 1 has laid over 1,700 running feet of walk. The contractor expects to be finished the latter part of the week.

Bills and claims amounting to $4,207.54 were approved by the board. The treasurer's report was read by Harry Van Himbergen, Jr., and placed on file.

H. J. Kokke, committeeman of the independent union of the Kimberly-Clark corporation, appeared before the board and asked for a room in the village hall on the second Monday of each month for union meetings. He explained that at a recent meeting the second Tuesday of each month was voted which was most convenient for all employees but because the Boy Scouts are using the hall on that date, it was necessary for them to ask for the second Monday. The Boy Scout organization may move to other quarters which will later give the union its original day for their meetings.

An Appleton resident appeared before the village board at its meeting Monday evening in regard to what he called his unjust arrest for violating a traffic law recently. He said he was arrested by a police officer in the village and when he appeared in justice court pleaded not guilty but was found guilty and fined. He added that he has been driving a car for 15 years without an arrest and asked that his name be taken off the document.

President Lang told the man that the board had no authority to act as judge in this case and that the regular procedure in this matter would be to make an appeal to a higher court.

Mr. Batchelor, former director of physical education at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Y.M.C.A., will speak on "The Meaning of Leisure." He was in the boys' department of the Duluth Y.M.C.A. and superintendent of recreation at Duluth at one time, and organized and directed the Lincoln Methodist Episcopal Institutional church in Chicago. He has conducted institutes for training recreation leaders in Omaha, Kansas City, Chicago, Kansas and many mid-western cities.

Miss McRuer was graduated from the University of Oklahoma with honors and taught history and Spanish in high school for several years. For 21 years she served as field secretary of the Committee of Christian Education of the Presbyterian church and from this office went to First Presbyterian church at Ardmore, Okla., as director of religious education. One of her particular interests has been the summer conference. It was at one of these, she says, that she became a Life Work recruit. She has also participated in the program of 12 state and international Christian "Elevator" conventions.

Mrs. Garrett De Jong, Cedar Grove, Wis., another of the speakers for the institute, will discuss her experiences in Arabia where she was a missionary for the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions for the Reformed Church in America. She lived in Kuwait on the Persian gulf for six years where she had charge of girls' club work and evangelistic work for women, and at times assisted with the medical work. This part of the program is expected to interest the women greatly as the various missionary groups of the federation are studying "The Moslem World" this year.

College Professor Reviews American Foreign Relations

The American foreign policy from Washington's farewell address to the present time was reviewed by Donald Du Shane, professor of government at Lawrence college, in a talk entitled "Will America Save the World Again?" last night at Memorial Presbyterian church, one of a series to be given by him under the auspices of the Presbyterian Guild.

The speaker pointed out that America has got into every general European war since that time and he discussed the forces which are making for war in the world and some of the remedies as he sees them. He spoke of the immediate American foreign policy in connection with China, Japan and Spain, and called attention to some of the happenings of this year which parallel events in 1915 and 1916 such as the extension of credit to Japan and the various newspaper cartoons, editorials and news photographs which are spreading propaganda, true or untrue.

Professor Du Shane said that President Roosevelt's speech in Chicago this week junked the neutrality legislation recently passed by congress. A discussion period followed the address.

Roosevelt Hints Special Session By Mid-November

two days of rest at Hyde park in the company of his aged mother who has just returned from a long holiday in Europe.

He planned to return to Washington Friday morning, but to go back to Hyde park a week from today to dedicate a new postoffice at Poughkeepsie.

Hint Special Session
Evidences that a special session may be called to convene in mid-November were given by some presidential callers during the trip that took him to Seattle and back, but presidential aides insisted this was not yet settled.

Although labor and farm legislation topped the immediate objectives outlined on the journey, the president also talked of:
1. A balanced budget by the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1938.
2. Continued programs to irrigate dry areas and transfer poor farmers to more productive regions.
3. Wider distribution of control of industry.
4. Less federal spending.
5. A more prosperous agriculture.
6. Widest possible distribution of hydro-electric power at cheap rates.
7. Fewer over-sized cities and more smaller towns.

Speculation as to his next move in a world situation he described as fraught with "international anarchy and instability" over-shadowed all else on the last night on his special train as it sped across Ohio and northern New York.

Take "Positive" Steps
In Chicago, in an address assistants said had been long in preparation, he proposed a "concert" of all peace-loving nations to take "positive" steps to end what he regarded as a threat to world peace.

Whether he was thinking of economic sanctions or some other move to isolate the militaristic "disease" he did not say, but the implications were pronounced when, interjecting a "Mark you well" in his prepared address, he said:

"When an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread, the community approves and joins in a quarantine of the patients in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

No Nations Named
His ringing words were interpreted generally as aimed at Japan, Germany and Italy—though no nation was mentioned by name.

In two speeches after Chicago—anti-climax at best—the president drew a lesson from his own wide travels and urged American citizens to get out and see their country to avoid narrow-mindedness.

During a stop at Cleveland last night, he spoke over a national radio hookup from his private car in the New York Herald-Tribune forum on current events. He amended Horace Greeley's slogan "Go west" to read "All the way to the coast" and then "south and north and east."

Use of Handkerchief by Pupil in School Important

BY ANGELO PATRI

We have nicer ways among school children than we used to have. A few years ago when the first cool days of fall arrived we used to see noses wiped on coat sleeves, or not wiped at all. Handkerchiefs were scarce, and those in evidence might better not have been for they had clearly served more purposes than the accepted one.

Now we have paper handkerchiefs. Most of the children have a wad of them tucked about them somewhere. Those who came unprepared are supplied by the others. These handkerchiefs come cheaply and one can use a number of them a day without draining the family purse.

The use of a handkerchief is important in school where a sneeze or a cough scatters possible infection over a room filled with children. Inside air is none too good at its best and careless sneezes find their victims easily. Few children today cough or sneeze or sniffle without a hasty dive for the little paper handkerchief carried in the handiest place possible. Which is a great help and highly encouraging. We have made a beginning.

Next, along with the handkerchiefs, we need wash basins, hot and cold water, soap and towels, well fitted wash rooms presided over by trained matrons, to insure cleanliness. Children play in the yards, fall and spread their hands on the earth. They handle paper and chalk and paints and pencils and a hundred other things in the course of a school session. They use the toilets. And, to our disgrace, they have no way of washing their hands. Anybody who takes an interest in the health of school children knows the implications of dirty hands. We must have equipment for cleanliness in the schools.

The day is coming when the schools will permit children, who come to school clean, to stay clean, and those who come dirty, to make themselves clean. Cleanliness is the first step toward health, and we cannot make the community or the school children too conscious of that fact.

This field of social service is peculiarly the women's own. To women are entrusted the care of the children and now that they can vote and hold office the way to sound health for school children ought to open.

Schools need the services of skilled physicians. One man to a couple of thousand children can do very little. We need enough doctors to examine every school child twice each term, and enough nurses to carry out the instructions of the doctors. One nurse to a community of eight schools becomes merely a symbol of an idea. She cannot put much practice into it. Every school of any size needs its own doctor to visit it daily, one nurse to stay in the building all day, one consulting psychologist, one visitor, and the use of dental and medical and mental clinics whenever they are needed.

I believe that the public school should serve its children to the end that they go out to take their places as citizens in sound mental and physical health. The good school cooperates with the parents in this work. It aids those parents who cannot help their children. Children belong to their families first, but they belong to their communities and to their country all the time. Let's provide the means for the job before us. The paper handkerchiefs are a fine start. Let's go on a little farther.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Modern Girl Is Healthy, Has Vitality

BY ELSIE FIERCE

A European artist recently paid compliment to American women. They remind him, he said, of good photographs... very distinct and definite—not blurred nor faded.

Some women are particularly smart. They are like particularly good photographs. You single them out. They pass in any crowd, and pass 'way out in front or stand out in relief anyway—they can't be lost.

This recalled the fact that some decades ago it was quite the fashionable thing for young debutantes to affect a very bored attitude. That, they thought, gave them a worldly air. Little did they suspect that nothing makes one look as completely negative as feigned boredom.

The young modern of our age is a very vital thing—sharp, alert, keen.

Healthy to Begin With

To begin with she has a firm foundation for that vitality. It's a sound body to house the sound mind. She cares for and cultivates that body, takes pride in its health; admits it, quite frankly. She is active, mentally and physically. She has her own sports and is an interested sports spectator. She has hobbies. She loves people; is interested, vitally interested, in them. That's why others are so interested in her.

And so far as her beauty goes, she doesn't deny for one moment that she is quick to do things that make her very positively lovely. There's nothing negative about her—neither her personality, nor her outlook on life, nor the color of her hair, or its style, or the make-up she wears to enhance the color of her eyes, the shape of her face. Everything she does, for beauty's sake, she does purposefully. It's all planned to point up the positive, make her more definitely, distinctively lovely.

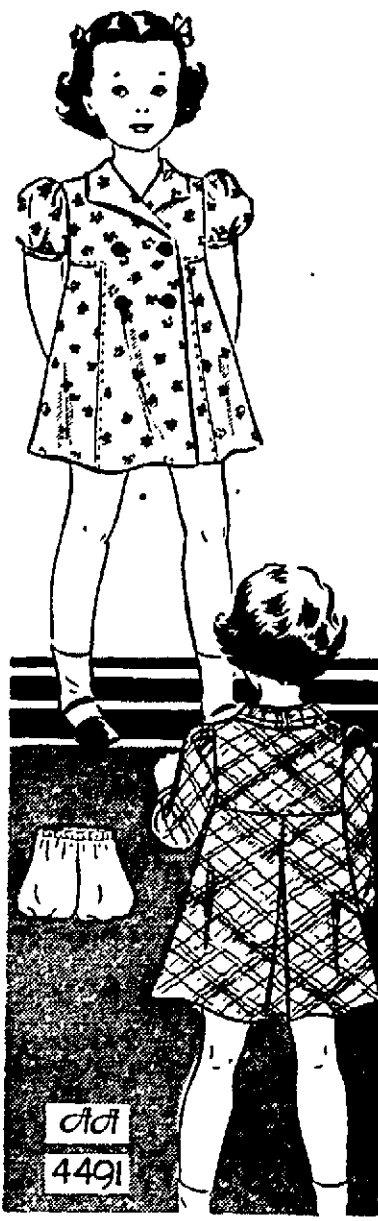

Don't be negative. Don't be dull. Don't let your hair look mousey or scraggly or thin. Don't let your muscles go flabby. Don't let your make-up look blurry. It takes effort. It takes practice. It takes strength. It takes time. But it will make you look like a good photograph, a picture of a lovely girl. My bulletin "Beauty's Schedule" is yours for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

West opened the club queen dummy's ace won, and a trump was led. West took the ace and cast about for a means of putting East on lead for a club return. De-clarer declared must have the diamond ace for his opening bid. West thought the best chance was to find East with a singleton heart, hence played the ace, intending to follow with a second round. De-clarer ruffed, however, and led out three high trumps, discarding two clubs from dummy. East had no difficulty in discarding on two trumps—he let go clubs—but on the last lead he was hard pressed. He could read the club queen opening as a singleton, which marked de-clarer with three originally. Therefore, he (East) had to hold as many clubs as de-clarer. He could not afford to discard the diamond suit and, hence, had to blank his heart king. Had de-clarer led just one more trump, he would have made poor East's position untenable. For some reason, however, de-clarer held on to his two remaining trumps and attacked diamonds. The third round disclosed that East had the suit stopped.

Success still was within de-clarer's grasp. All he had to do was ruff dummy's ten of hearts. East's king would have been ruffed away. Instead of that, de-clarer, who had noted East's club discards, prayed for a club break, in short, that the king and jack would drop together. Obviously, they didn't, and when him on the street corner. Nor does any one know any formula for making a love-sick schoolgirl think of her lessons instead of some equally object of her affection. Neither has any scientist discovered how to put an old head on young shoulders. As for convincing any girl or boy that it is worth sacrificing present pleasure for future gains, it can't be done. They want what they want when they want it.

So there the parents are who have to deal with this problem of the 12 or 13 year old girl who is still an ignorant, blundering helpless little child, but who thinks she is a woman of the world and demands her privileges, and how to solve it no one can tell them. One can only say to be very gentle with them. Drive with a light rein and use the diplomacy of Machiavelli himself in dealing with them. And with luck you will get Janie safely past the dangerous age.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

YOUNG MEN VS. YOUNG WOMEN

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any set rule applying to the changing of partners when several couples go dancing together? For instance, there are three couples, let's say, two of whom know each other quite well, and the third knowing only one of the other couples. Whose responsibility would it be to start the changing of partners? Six of us went dancing the other evening and there was no changing of partners throughout the entire evening. Mother thought this decidedly strange, which is why I am writing for your opinion.

Answer: As a usual thing, people dance as they choose, and the only responsibility of the host is when a girl is left sitting alone. He then must go look after her. To me it seems strange that the people you were with danced with the same partners all evening, but I have heard that this custom exists in certain communities. Personally I think it better fun as well as better form to dance with many partners—unless your own happens to be the only good dancer in the room or, to you, the only man in the world.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is a husband disqualified from being classed a gentleman if he doesn't carry his wife's umbrella when it is not raining? When we went to a picture and I held my wife's umbrella over her, but when we came in over the theatre the sky was clear and I asked her to carry it. Now she claims that each year we're married I get more lax.

Answer: Most men hate carrying things, and while they do what they think they ought to when necessary, they are not pleased when they think the demand upon their courtesy is unreasonable. It is necessary, for example, that a man carry a woman's heavy bag (if having it with her is unavoidable). But it should be a natural gesture on her part to hang her umbrella over her arm or else roll it and walk with it as though it were a stick. When it rains a man should hold the umbrella over her only when it is big enough for him to share it, but if it is of parasol size that could not cover two heads possibly without dripping water down both of their necks, then she holds it over her own head alone as her mother held her parasol in the days when women carried them.

Dear Mrs. Post: I've had a friendly discussion with my wife about the good taste of giving compliments. Is it not overdue? My wife on the other hand feels that it shows appreciation.

Answer: If we didn't say something sometimes about the becomingness of a friend's dress or the beauty of her new hair, we would be looking in friendly interest as well as in perception. But to go about paying fulsome compliments to every one without sincerity or discrimination is one definition of a bore.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

Bulbs can be grown readily in the house by using sponges. A fairly large sponge is needed, and several holes should be cut in it, a bulb being inserted in each hole. Soak the sponge and suspend it in a dark room or cupboard for a month. Then bring it out and hang it near a window. Grass seed can be sprinkled in the holes, but unpollinated rice will do as well. This will give a better effect while the bulbs are growing than the sponge itself. Suitable bulb flowers for this purpose are snowdrops, crocus, squill and glory of the snow.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of fluid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your bowels don't move. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system feels sour, and the world looks pink. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more powerful movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Have less gas, get amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Substitutes refuse anything else. See.

Eagle Myths and Facts

Where do the winds come from? The Norsemen of old Europe had a strange answer for that question. They declared that the winds were made by a storm-giant in the form of an eagle. The storm-giant was said to take his place "at the edge of heaven" and to "blow blasts of wind over all the people."

American Bald Eagle.

The Norse story does not give the truth about the cause of winds, but it is one of many cases where myths mention eagle-shaped heavenly beings. The ancient Greeks said that the great god Zeus sometimes took the form of an eagle. In Greek myths we also find that an eagle is supposed to have helped Zeus win a war against giant-like beings called Titans. We are told that an eagle "carried thunderbolts in his claws and gave them to Zeus." Using the thunderbolts as weapons, Zeus was able to defeat the Titans.

Aside from olden myths, we know that men in early times looked on eagles as kings among the birds. Roman soldiers carried bronze and silver images of eagles on long poles when they went into battle. In North America, there are two great eagle families—bald eagles and golden eagles. The bald eagle was chosen as an emblem of the United States government. It is not really bald, but there are white feathers on the head and neck of full-grown birds, and this may make them seem "bald" at a distance. Bald eagles like fish, but do not go to the trouble of catching them. Sometimes they feed on dead fish washed ashore by the waves. They also wait in the air while fish-hawks swoop down and seize fish. When a hawk rises with a fish, an eagle is likely to fly near and make the hawk give up its prey.

Golden eagles are so named because of the yellow-brown feathers about their heads and necks. These feathers glow in the sunlight with a golden hue.

Except in Nova Scotia and Maine, golden eagles are not often seen east of the Mississippi. They are fairly common in the Rocky mountain region. During the breeding season, they are seen as far north as Alaska.

Golden eagles are flesh-eaters. They often sweep to the ground and capture a rabbit or lamb. They also prey upon geese and turkeys. Tests seem to have proved that a golden eagle cannot lift a weight of more than seven or eight pounds.

National Bridge Exam Opens With 2 Problems

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Today is the actual start of the national bridge examination, which I announced yesterday and the day preceding. I should like readers to remember two things: First, that this is an examination to determine contract bridge knowledge, not a quiz based on any individual system; second, that if readers prefer to have me grade their answers, they have only to send them in. I will grade them, file them and, when the examination is over, mail the final mark together with a certificate to the effect that the individual concerned deserves master, expert, or post-graduate rating. (Lower rankings will not want certificates.)

If you rate yourself here is how to do it: Assume at the start that your bridge is 100 per cent. Answer the questions and compare your answers with those that will appear the following day. If you are correct, you remain 100 per cent. If not, you must deduct the number of points that will be assigned by me.

Now, here are the first two questions: Question 1. Neither side vulnerable. You are the dealer and held:

♠ 3 ♥ 5 4 ♦ A J 9 5 2 ♣ K 8 4 3

What call do you make? Question 2. Neither side vulnerable. You are South, third hand.

Your partner and second hand pass. You hold:

What call do you make?

Many declarers stop playing trumps the moment that the adversaries' trumps have been drawn. Sometimes, of course, this is wise. There may be a specific need for trump conservation. But often de-clarer has more trumps than he knows what to do with and, in these cases, it usually is effective to run off a few and force the opponents to discard. They may find the discarding process quite disagreeable.

But here is Janie still a child in years, in mind, in body, clamoring for freedom and the right to do as she pleases. Resenting parental restraint. Wanting all the emotions and experiences of womanhood before her time and before she has the wisdom and poise to deal with them safely. Playing with love and sex as a child plays with fire. And regarding Father and Mother as tyrants if they try to control her or safeguard her.

It's easy enough to say that Janie's parents should turn her across their knees, give her a spanking, send her to bed without her supper and tell her to forget all about the boy friend who is going out in Johnnie's automobile, and make her realize that there will be time enough for her to go to parties and have good times when she is five or six years older.

But the strong-arm method of ruling youngsters doesn't work in these days of emancipated children. To lock Janie in her room would only mean that she would climb out of the window. To forbid the boy friend to come to the house would just send her out to meet

Committee Will Act on Proposed Street Extension

Three Aldermen Named to Meet With Railroad Officials

New London—Negotiations for extension of E. Quincy street across the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks were pushed with the appointment last night of three aldermen to meet with the railroad engineers and City Attorney Putnam to reach an agreement on the extent of cooperation by both parties. Rail engineers told Putnam last week that the city would be expected to carry out some of the work which is more convenient to the city than to the railroad.

The total cost of the project was strongly estimated at $900. It was suggested by rail officials that the city could do the grading and supply crushed stone much cheaper than the railroad could do it.

Mayor Wendlandt appointed Aldermen Emans, Litts and Springmire to join in a meeting with rail officials at Putnam's office Thursday afternoon. An effort will be made to establish what cooperation the city can afford and report back to the council at the next meeting.

Major items of expense listed were engineer's fees, $50; grading, 100; two culverts, $250; planking, 75; crushed stone, $30; and relocating switches, $333.

City officials were informed yesterday by the public service commission at Madison that a date and place would be set within 10 days for a hearing on the matter of the extension.

City Wants Lights At 45 Intersection

New London Will Ask County to Install Traffic Signals

New London—The New London common council last night decided to ask Waupaca county to install stop and go traffic signal lights at the intersection of Highways 45 and 54 in the north limits of the city. City Attorney Giles H. Putnam was instructed to present the city's request before the highway committee of the county board in the near future and if now no satisfaction is received a resolution requesting the lights will be submitted to the county board.

The installation of lights has been considered by the city before but restricted finances make the move impossible as a municipal project. The fatal accident which occurred at the intersection Monday is expected to arouse county authorities to the advisability of a regulated signal. Previous investigation disclosed that the state department will not install traffic lights within the limits of any municipality.

On the recommendation of the chief of police the council authorized the purchase of eight school zone safety signs for use in the city. The signs consist of a 4-foot police figure and cost $3 each. Two will be placed on each of Beacon avenue, Shawano, St. Pearl and Division streets. A small amount remains in the 1937 city budget for street signs from which the purchase will be made.

Those picked by Director H. H. Brockhaus to appear in the play are Robert Hutchison, Harmon Pies, Robert Hetzer, Marion Johnson, Patricia Gierwin, Polley Hartquist, Helen Schoenrock, and Patricia Egan. All will be new faces to the high school stage.

Damage in Store Fire Is Estimated at $1,000

New London—The damage to building and stock resulting from the fire at the rear of the Gamble store agency here last Thursday, Sept. 30, was set at approximately $1,000 by insurance appraisers yesterday.

The loss of stock was estimated at $400, damage to the building at about $600. While only the rear of the store was affected by the fire the main display room was left in a soiled condition by the heavy smoke. There was no damage by water.

Council Allows Claim of Woman Injured in Fall

Aldermen Vote, 6 to 4, to Pay Amelia Rasmussen $300

New London—A claim of $300 by Miss Amelia Rasmussen for a broken arm suffered several months ago when she tripped on a defect in a city walk and fell, was allowed by the common council last night by a 6 to 4 decision.

The settlement was arranged by the finance committee Saturday with Miss Rasmussen's attorney. The city sought to settle for $250. The city attorney reported the walk was defective and the city liable. The injured asked compensation for doctor bills, cost of hired help, loss of earning power while disabled and pain suffered.

Mayor E. W. Wendlandt reported that eastern representatives of the Edison Wood Products company had protested to him of excessive tax assessments and asked for an investigation. The officials contended the assessment was far out of line with the volume of business the plant is doing. The mayor appointed the finance committee to interview local plant officials and report back to the council at the next meeting.

The question of the amount of insurance on the bathhouse at the Hatten Memorial park was brought up by Alderman Litts and held over for further consideration next meeting. Authoritative figures on possible losses will be secured for the next meeting.

Request Proof of Title to Floodway Tract at New London

New London—Steps to end a decade-long controversy involving the floodway course north and west of this city were taken last night when the common council adopted a resolution by the board of public works requesting that R. E. Rasmussen, alleged owner of a large part of the tract, submit proof of his ownership of any part of the course west of Highway 45, together with his selling price, at the next meeting of the council Oct. 19.

If satisfactory proof is not submitted at that meeting proceedings will be started at once to secure title to the land, the resolution declared. The state highway department has made a gentlemen's agreement with the city of New London to donate $10,000 toward the development of the floodway course provided the city holds title to the property.

Discussion and wrangling on the matter has continued for years. Several offers made by the city the past year proved futile when no understanding could be reached with Rasmussen.

Plan Would Give Fire Protection To Rural Zones

Officials Discuss Added Equipment at Black Creek Meeting

Black Creek—Discussion of a plan for increased fire protection in this community was held at a meeting of several members of town boards in the town of Cicero and town of Black Creek and other interested citizens here Monday night.

Roy Bishop, Black Creek fire chief, and members of his department were present at the meeting, the first to be called for this purpose. Under the plan, used now in other localities, a new fire truck would be purchased and the expense prorated among the townships receiving the protection.

Besides the towns of Cicero and Black Creek, it has been suggested that portions of the towns of Bovina and Center be included in the proposed protected zone.

C. J. Burdick, president of the village of Black Creek, said today that if the plan was adopted, a new truck carrying a tank with a 700-gallon capacity would be purchased. The presence of such equipment would alleviate the danger from lack of water that attends many rural fires, he pointed out.

Need Another Unit
In the community surrounding Black Creek is to have added fire protection, it will be necessary to add another fire fighting unit so that the village of Black Creek can have its regular equipment always on hand. Under a provision in the plan, rural firemen would be recruited to augment the Black Creek department and follow the truck on out-of-town fires.

Although town boards have the power to act on such a proposal, it is likely that the plan will be put up to the voters at the spring elections.

Insurance men from this locality present at the meeting stressed savings in insurance rates that would be effected by such a step. Among the men who spoke were M. F. Zuerch, Steve Otis, Rufus Poole, Oscar Schultz, and Jesse Lathrop, Hortonville; Mel Gosse, Seymour; C. J. Burdick, Walter Blake and Arthur Genske, Black Creek.

More meetings with the boards from the towns of Cicero and Black Creek have been scheduled and it is planned to include board members from the towns of Bovina and Center in future discussions.

Menasha Council Delays Action on New School Funds

Await Specific Information
From Board for Needed Equipment

Menasha—Action by the city council in granting funds to the school board for the purchase of equipment for the new Menasha high school was held over at the meeting of the council last night until such time that the council could get in touch with the school board and know exactly what was wanted.

A communication was read from F. B. Younger, secretary of the board of education, stating that the list of minimum equipment necessary to place the new school in operation had been prepared by Mr. Younger, superintendent of schools, and S. E. Crockett, director of the vocational school.

As much equipment as was salvaged from the old school, including chairs, desks and typewriting tables, will be used. The equipment of the old school was inventoried at $78,000. There was no gym nor auditorium to be equipped in that building however. About $24,000 is available for equipment in the building fund of the Menasha high school.

No particular amount was requested from the council by the board of education last night. At the meeting of all boards of the city to consider means of financing the purchase of equipment, a grant of $42,000 was asked by the board of education. The absolute minimum necessary to place the school in operation has been estimated at $68,000, while to completely equip the building would require about $119,000.

Approves Wage Scale
The council also approved the wage scale for certain classes of semi-skilled and unskilled workers at the new building. The action was a matter of form to fulfill government regulations.

The recommendation of the planning commission that Ben Weidman be authorized to open a plat in Darling's addition, Second ward, and that the city purchase land for street purposes there, was held over upon motion of Alderman Earl Sauter.

Alderman C. J. Oberweiser pointed out that some departments, notably the police department, were exceeding their budgets. Mayor Held thought that earnings of the department in fines should be returned to that department instead of to the general fund. The police department is running over its budget, which was based upon the amount used a year ago, because of the purchase of a new motorcycle, four new tires for the squad car and the addition of new men, required by state law.

The street committee was authorized to repair railroad crossings in the city and make arrangements with the city attorney for sending the bill to the railroads. Notices have been given the railroads to repair the crossings but nothing has been done.

The water and light department was ordered to move pole on Taylor street so Richard Resch could construct a driveway to his home.

The water and light commission was instructed to install a water main on Abbey avenue one-half block west from Matheson street upon motion of Alderman Clement Newcomb. There will be four homes tapping the main.

The house owned by the city at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Matheson street was sold to Theodore Klaus, Hewitt street, for $80. Under the terms of the bid, Klaus must remove the house from its present location.

per Zephyr Squad
At Menasha

Menasha—St. Mary high school will invade the Northeastern Wisconsin conference Saturday afternoon in its football game at Kaukaun. The Zephyrs still will be search of their first victory and will be hard pressed to take it from Coach Marvin Miller's "alma mater."

Visiting Nurse Association Opens Annual Drive for Funds

Neenah — Hundreds of manila envelopes containing a pamphlet prepared in the form of a nurse's report and budget for the coming year will reach past subscribers today as the Neenah and Menasha Visiting Nurse association opens its annual drive for funds. The drive, which is not being conducted by house to house subscription but by direct mail, continues through Wednesday, Oct. 13, at which time the annual meeting will be held at the Twin City Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Robert McMillen, chairman of the financial committee for the drive, together with Mrs. H. Du Bois, Mrs. Kimberly Stuart, Mrs. D. W. Bergstrom, Jr., Mrs. Donald Turner, Mrs. K. B. Mory, Mrs. L. H. Kimberly and Mrs. D. L. Kimberly, prepared the direct mail appeal for the drive at a meeting yesterday afternoon at Mrs. D. L. Kimberly's home on E. Wisconsin avenue.

One of the major projects of the Visiting Nurse association which maintains a staff of four nurses and sponsors child health and dental clinics throughout the entire year, is the memorial endowment fund which now totals $3,590.

Seek Endowment

The purpose of the fund is not to add any new nurses to the present staff but only to enable the organization to endow perpetually at least one or two nurses so that if the situation should arise at some future time when the public would be unable or unwilling to give its support to the V.N.A., the endowment fund would be sufficient to carry on.

The sum of $30,000 would endow forever the services of one Visiting Nurse in Neenah and Menasha. The sum of $6,000 would endow in perpetuity one daily visit by a visiting nurse. About $1,000 would guarantee forever a weekly visit and the sum of $20 would assure the Twin Cities of at least one visit annually. By these figures, it can readily be seen that no matter how small the sum that one may contribute to the fund, the money will go toward swelling the grand total to such proportions as will eventually assure to the Twin Cities adequate nursing care for all who need it.

In certain cities where this Memorial Endowment fund is in operation, persons to contribute to it in memory of a relative or friend or to celebrate the birthday anniversary of one who is dear to them, receive annually a written report of the actual work accomplished by the visiting nurse whom they are helping to support. In Boston at present, there are 150 nurses on the staff of the V.N.A., 15 of whom are perpetually endowed. The principle in this endowment is the same as permanently endowing a hospital bed as has been done by the Neenah-Menasha Emergency society and Mrs. Ernest Mahler, Neenah.

Within the last two months, one of the board members of the V.N.A. in Neenah and Menasha has presented to this Memorial Endowment fund, a check for $1,000.

Visiting Nurse association board members, discussing the drive for this year, have stated that anyone searching for some worthy cause to which they wish to contribute, even though the amount be very small, will find this endowment fund one of the best. "Charity begins at home" which means in our own community, according to board members of the V.N.A.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lighty

Giants — Whitehead lifted the second pitch in a fly to DiMaggio and sent a high fly to DiMaggio. With the count three and two, Moore dropped a Texas league single into left. Bartell lined to Hoag a few feet in front of the left field barrier. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees — Terry sent Al Smith, a southpaw, to the box for the Giants — their fourth pitcher. Lazzeri swung at the first pitch, watched three balls pass and then hit a home run into the lower left field stands. Gomez, with the count one and two, slapped a line drive to Rippe, who made a one-hand stab of it after first misjudging the ball. Crosetti lined to Ott on the first pitch. Rolfe hoisted to Moore. One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

Ninth Inning

Giants — Ott watched a called strike sail over and then went down swinging on the next two. Leiber lined to DiMaggio with the count two and one. Rippe walked. McCarthy grounded out to Gehrig unassisted to end the game. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

missing a hit by inches. Hubbell grounded out to Gehrig, unassisted. One run, three hits, no errors, one left.

Yankees — Hoag lifted a high fly to Bartell on the first pitch. Selkirk, working against a count of three and two hoisted to Rippe in short right. Lazzeri went out swinging for the third out as Hubbell retired the Yankees in order for the fourth straight inning. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Sixth Inning

Giants — Moore dribbled a single through the middle of the diamond, but Bartell flied to Selkirk on the second pitch. Ott worked the count to two and two and then fouled to Dickey, who made the catch in front of the Giants' dugout. Leiber flied deep to Hoag for the third out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees — Gomez fell to the ground as he ducked out of the way of the first pitch, a wild one. The next two were high for balls. After two called strikes and a foul, the Yankee pitcher walked. Crosetti fouled two trying to bunt and then singled sharply to left, Gomez stopping at second. It was the first hit off Hubbell since the opening inning. With Rolfe at bat, Gomez was trapped off second, but Bartell dropped the ball and the Yankee pitcher was safe. Bartell was charged with an error.

With the count three and two—including three successive fouls—Rolfe dropped a single into short left, filling the bases and bringing up DiMaggio. The Yankee centerfielder, cracked the first pitch to left center for a single, scoring Gomez and Crosetti. On the throw-in Rolfe advanced to third and DiMaggio pulled up at second—barely safe. Bartell cut off Leiber's throw after the centerfielder had juggled the ball and just failed to catch DiMaggio. Gehrig was intentionally passed, filling the bases again.

Whitehead failed to hold Dickey's sharp grounder, and it went for a single, scoring Rolfe and leaving the bases still filled. Hoag, with the count two and one, grounded to Ott and DiMaggio was forced at the plate. Ott to Mancuso.

Hubbell Taken Out

Selkirk, with the count one and one, singled sharply to right and Gehrig and Dickey scored. Hoag went to third. The Giants clustered around Hubbell, while substitute pitchers warmed up in the bull pen. Terry sent in Dick Coffman, a right hander, to replace Hubbell.

The announcer, meanwhile, erroneously announced that Harry Gumbert had been selected to replace Hubbell, and a conference followed. As a result, Gumbert was ordered to the mound instead of Coffman.

Gumbert pitched to only one batter, Lazzeri, who, with the count one and one, rapped a sharp grounder which went through Whitehead for an error, allowing Hoag to score and advancing Selkirk to third. Coffman then went in. Gomez, up the second time, walked for his second pass. The bases were filled again, and Crosetti came to bat.

Crosetti lifted a short fly to Moore. Coffman whipped over three successive bad ones to Rolfe, sailed over a called strike to Ott and then walked the third base batter, forcing Selkirk across the plate. DiMaggio flied to Leiber in deep center on the first pitch, ending the hectic inning. Seven runs, five hits, two errors, three left.

Seventh Inning

Giants — Rippe flied to Hoag in short left, and McCarthy rolled out. Gomez to Gehrig. Mancuso, with the count two and one, hoisted to DiMaggio in short center. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees — Gehrig walked with the count three and two. Dickey walked on four straight pitches, and Terry sent pitchers out to warm up in the bull pen. Hoag attempted a sacrifice bunt, but it rolled over the third base line. DiMaggio fired the ball to second in an attempt to pick off Gehrig, but Bartell was knocked off his feet and dropped the ball as Lou crashed into him. Hoag failed in another attempted sacrifice, and then hit into a double play. Ott to Whitehead to Selkirk. Gehrig went to third. Selkirk ended the inning by grounding out, Bartell to McCarthy. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Eighth Inning

One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

Ninth Inning

Roosevelt Address May Rank Among Great Contributions to World Peace

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York — President Roosevelt's peace speech at Chicago may find a place in history as one of the great individual contributions of this generation to world-unity, coming as it does at the time of a crisis which is threatening many nations.

Everything depends, of course, on the manner in which Mr. Roosevelt's words are backed up.

Certainly he didn't make this sensational speech merely to reiterate that graphic three word sentence, "I hate war." It could scarcely be an empty gesture.

One thing emerges fairly clear: the president in effect has assumed the leadership among international statesmen in the campaign against war. In the language of his revered cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, his hat is in the ring.

Pending further developments, it is fair to say that President Roosevelt may have gone a long way towards providing the League of Nations with the teeth that Woodrow Wilson tried to give it but failed.

The league has encountered failure after failure in its efforts to stop wars, and its members have claimed that its weakness lay in the aloofness of America.

Mr. Roosevelt hasn't joined the league now, but he would appear to have placed behind it a moral force so tremendous as to insure respect from would-be offenders.

By the same token he has, on paper, lined the United States up solidly with all peace efforts being made by individual nations like Great Britain.

Speaking of Great Britain, war-mongering nations and those actually engaged in hostilities cannot help being reminded that the United States and Britain together represent a force, economic and military that could face the rest of the world with assurance if necessary.

The most sensational aspect of the president's speech lay in the fact that he stepped clear off the beaten path of diplomacy when, in his castigation of warring countries, he virtually named them.

The bluntness of his language probably was unprecedented for one in his position.

The French foreign office was the first to label the address for it really appears to be, namely, an announcement of "the real entry of the great moral force of the United States" into the world's troubled affairs.

The world will wait anxiously to see whether the President's speech tunes the peace-machine up to the pitch of efficiency necessary in the present crisis.

Wife Asks Decree When Mate Puts Fence in Bed

Salem, Mass. — Her husband built a fence "right in the center of our bed," Mrs. Ethel M. Brouillard, 27, of Gloucester, told Judge Harry R. Dow.

"He nailed a plank in the middle of the bed," she explained. "I was very uncomfortable for me to sleep after that, for the bed was none too large."

Judge Dow took her divorce petition on charges of cruelty under advisement. The husband, German J. Brouillard, Claremont, N. H., automobile salesman, did not contest.

Court Has Power to Smash Slot Machines

Madison — A slot machine seized by a sheriff may be destroyed by court order. Attorney General Orland S. Loomis Tuesday informed District Attorney Victor O. Tremstad, Eau Claire county.

The sheriff of Eau Claire county notified the machines in a room. All defendants pleaded guilty and were fined. The court's right to order destruction of the machines was questioned. Loomis said the machines were contraband, and thus incapable of nature to sue, with the "owners" having no interest.

Duck Hunting Opens Saturday

Pheasant Season Begins Oct. 23; May Hunt In County

MADISON—(U)—The state conservation department announced today that 1896 regulations on duck hunting again will be in effect during a 30 day season beginning next Saturday.

The state law on shooting hours, bag limit, use of decoys and other details differs from federal regulations in only one respect. While the federal law allows a daily bag of 20 mudhens, the state order, which prevails in this instance, allows only 10 birds a day.

Hunters may shoot 10 of any species of duck, except canvasback, redhead, wood, ruddy and bufflehead, and an aggregate of five wild geese and brant in one day. Shooting hours are from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. The open season on rails and various species of snipe is concurrent with that on ducks. The daily bag limit is 15 in single or aggregate species. Woodcock may be shot from Oct. 17 to Oct. 31, the bag limit being four a day.

A 14 day season on ringneck, blackneck, monardian, and mutant pheasant cocks will open Oct. 23 in 57 counties. The daily bag limit is two birds, with a possession limit of four.

Pheasant Counties
The counties in which pheasants may be taken are Adams, Barron, Brown, Buffalo, Burnett, Calumet, Chippewa, Clark, Columbia, Crawford, Dane, Dodge, Door, Dunn, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Green, Grant, Lake, Iowa, Jackson, Jefferson, Juneau, Kenosha, Kewaunee, Lincoln, Lafayette, Manitowish, Marinette, Marinette, Marquette, Monroe, Oconto, Outagamie, Ozaukee, Pepin, Pierce, Polk, Portage, Racine, Richland, Rock, Rusk, St. Croix, Sauk, Sawyer, Sheboygan, Taylor, Trempealeau, Vernon, Walworth, Washburn, Washington, Waukesha, Waupaca, Waushara, Winnebago and Wood.

It will be illegal to kill all other upland game birds, except Hungarian partridge in Dane, Dodge, Jefferson, Ozaukee, Racine, Shawano, Walworth, Washington and Waukesha counties. The partridge season opens Oct. 23 and ends Nov. 5. The daily limit is four birds and the possession limit eight.

Regulation on other game include:

Gray and fox squirrels (Oct. 23 to Dec. 1); Bag limit 5 each day in Adams, Barron, Buffalo, Burnett, Chippewa, Crawford, Dane, Dunn, Eau Claire, Grant, Green, Iowa, Jackson, Juneau, Kewaunee, Lincoln, Lafayette, Marquette, Monroe, Pepin, Pierce, Polk, Portage, Richland, Rock, St. Croix, Sauk, Trempealeau, Vernon and Wood counties.

In addition to a 3 day deer hunting season in 30 counties beginning Nov. 29, the department authorized a bow and arrow season in four counties from Oct. 9 to Oct. 28, allowing each archer one fork horned buck. The area includes Columbia, Manitowish, and Sauk counties, and the towns of Black Earth, Blue Mounds, Mazomanie, Roxbury, and Vermont in Dane county.

Driscoll Seeks Offensive Punch

Koster, 195-Pound Soph, Goes Into Hilltop Backfield

Milwaukee—(U)—Coach Paddy Driscoll experimented at the backfield and end positions of his Marquette university football team today in an effort to develop a stronger offense for Friday night's game here with the University of South Dakota.

He changed Dan Koster, 195-pound Milwaukee sophomore fullback, to a halfback post in scrimmage yesterday and indicated he would probably start Koster there in Friday's game.

Billie Burke, sophomore end from Chicago, scrimmaged alternately at the wing posts occupied by veterans James Fenimore Cooper and Herb Anderson.

Driscoll is seeking to inject a drive into the attack that sputtered against the University of Wisconsin last Saturday.

Scrimmage yesterday stressed protection for punters and passers and defensive work against South Dakota plays as demonstrated by Coach Art Guepe's freshmen.

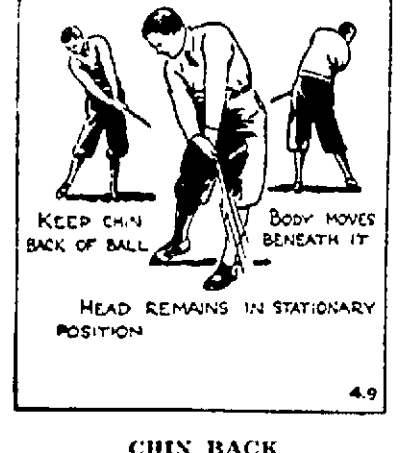

Delta Tau Delta Takes Fraternity Golf Title

Delta Tau Delta fraternity golfers annexed the interfraternity honors in the annual Lawrence college tournament held recently at Butte des Morts course. The Delta team was composed of Ed Rath who shot an 82 and Gerald Suszycki who shot an 88 for a team score of 170.

Second honors went to Phi Delta Theta team of Phil Killoran, 82, and Robert Noonan, 95, for a 177 team score. The Beta Theta Pi team of Robert Leverenz and Dan Murphy took third with a team score of 222. They shot 107 and 122, respectively.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

CHIN BACK

The suggestion, "keep the chin back of the ball" is another way of stressing the fact that the head should be kept still during the golf stroke. Although other golfers have long practiced the "chin back" idea, it waited for Alex Morrison to make a golf slogan out of it. It was successful in that the suggestion gave the player one particular point to focus his attention upon. Prior to this the golfer was told to keep his head still and the natural reaction was often one of tenseness.

If the muscles of the neck and shoulders are taut the chances are that the head will move, for the energy expended in the stroke has a tendency to drive it forward. Oftentimes the player is unaware his head has moved an appreciable distance, particularly if he is concentrating on it as a whole, but with a definite point like the chin to consider, and a spot back of the ball to line it up with, the danger is greatly lessened.

Walter Hagen often employed an expression which carries a correct interpretation of the head's function in the stroke, outside of something to think with. That was "Let the body move freely beneath it," and in the above illustrations the golfers seem to be doing just that. The chin remains pointed back of the original position of the ball but the body turn has been free and unrestricted. One way of determining whether you are guilty of this fault is to play with your back to the sun keeping an eye on the shadow.

Draft 16 Minor League Players

Second Division Clubs Pick New Men for 1938 Flag Race

New York—(U)—Stalemated for the second year in a row by New York's pennant monopoly, 11 major league clubs have drafted 16 minor league players in preparation for the pursuit of the Yankees and Giants in 1938.

The Giants and Yankees with important business at hand, didn't get a man at last night's draft meeting. But second division clubs helped themselves liberally.

The White Sox picked up William Martin, an infielder with the Baltimore Orioles, who hit .301 and bagged 21 homers.

Three infielders went to the Bees. They are Robert Kahle of Indianapolis of the American association, Joe Walsh of Little Rock in the Southern association and Earl Magert of Houston in the Texas league.

The Athletics took two pitchers, Nelson Potter of Columbus, American association champions and Ralph Buxton of Oklahoma City in the Texas league.

Win Over Southern California Would Give Ohio Top Spot

Bierman Leaves Five Regulars on Revised Minnesota Lineup

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
CHICAGO—(U)—The famous "High street coaches" of Columbus, O., are still holding their collective breath and tongue, but it's going to be hard to restrain them if Ohio State's Buckeyes get by Southern California Saturday in their ballyhooless campaign for national gridiron honors.

If Ohio State whips the Trojans at Los Angeles this week, however, the chorus may give tongue. It will be Ohio's last non-conference game, and a victory would rate it no worse than an even chance of getting through the season without a defeat. Northwestern, a week later, would appear to be the last big threat, unless Chicago, Indiana, or Michigan, should produce an upset.

Minnesota Shakeup
Bernie Bierman made numerous alterations in his Minnesota lineup, leaving on the first 11 only five men who started in the Nebraska defeat, as preparations went ahead for Indiana. The Hoosiers worked on an offense especially designed for use Saturday. Illinois was given another secret practice session on the surprise. Bob Zupke is preparing for Notre Dame, while the Irish concentrated on forward pass defense.

Northwestern, which opens defense of its conference title against Michigan, was hustled through a long drill on fundamentals, Coach Lynn Waldorf having found plenty to criticize in the Wildcats blocking and tackling against Iowa State last week. The Wolverines also concentrated on fundamentals, Wisconsin and Chicago, which clash at Chicago, engaged in offensive scrimmages.

At Purdue, Mal Edward searched for end replacements, his regulars, Don Powell and Jim Zachary, having suffered injuries in the Ohio State battle which may keep them out of Saturday's game with Carnegie Tech.

Newark, Birds in Last Game Tonight

Columbus Drops Third Straight 10-1; Teams Now Tied

Columbus—(U)—The surprising little world series between the Columbus Red Birds and Newark's Bears was right back where it started today, all even, and more than $4,000 worth of chips were down on the outcome of the seventh and deciding contest tonight.

The Birds, American association champs, swept the 3-game series at Newark, and then the Bears, International loop pennant winners by a 25-3 game margin, allowed the Birds a total of two runs in taking the three contests here. In the last three games the Bears outscored the Birds 10 to 2, last night's count being 10 to 1.

The $22,268.50 players' pool, poured into the coffers in the first four games, will be split on a 60-40 basis with the winner taking the heavy end. There's a difference of $4,453.70, and tonight's clash decides who gets the extra bit.

The Bears last night lambasted four Columbus hurlers for 14 hits, including four doubles and a pair of triples.

Bernice Wall Loses At Women's Tourney

Memphis, Tenn.—(U)—Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., was eliminated yesterday as America's feminine golfers squared off in the first round of the forty-first annual national championship, Miss Wall lost 6 and 5 to Beatrice Barrett, of Minneapolis, who was a stroke under par for the 13 holes.

20 Harriers Working Under Lawrence Coach

A squad of 20 Lawrence college cross country runners is working out regularly under direction of Coach Arthur C. Denney. There are ten varsity performers headed by Frank Schubert, Lawrence and Midwest conference champion, and John Fulton, and ten yearling runners. Last year's Vike team tied Carleton for the Midwest team title.

The all-campus run is scheduled for Oct. 15 with Schubert defending his title. On Oct. 22 a meet with the Milwaukee Y.M.C.A. team is scheduled here while on Oct. 30 a squad will be entered in the Midwest conference meet at Coe with Schubert defending the title he has won two straight years. The season will close with a run against Beloit, Nov. 6, the day of the Beloit-Lawrence football game.

The house that Jake built, Yankee Stadium, home of the Ruppert Rifles, today was the scene of the world series opening when the Yanks faced the National League champions. More than 50,000 fans, cheering lustily, munching peanuts, packed the vast modern coliseum to capacity to witness the 1937 climax of America's national pastime. Drawing them to the arena were the big guns of the American league, Joe DiMaggio, Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey and many another lesser star of the powerful combination that is the Yankees.

Miss Orcutt Out Of Golf Tourney

Loses to Florida Woman in First Round of National Play

Memphis, Tenn.—(U)—Thirty-two aspirants to the national women's golf title headed today into two rounds of "sudden death" matches from which only eight can emerge unbeaten.

Only Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., veteran and 1936 finalist, was missing from the list of favorites who lined up for the morning matches that will be followed by another round of eliminations this afternoon.

She was the first round victim of Mrs. George Brantley of Jacksonville, Fla., who met the medalist, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C., today.

Mrs. Page eliminated Marian Leachman of Berkeley, Calif., 3 and 2, yesterday.

There was a possibility Marion Miley, highly-rated entrant from Cincinnati, would be unable to continue competition. She defeated Virginia Fox of Hershey, Pa., 6 and 4, yesterday but entered a hospital a few hours later, suffering from a stomach ailment.

Her physician said she might be able to play if her fever went down. Miss Miley's second round opponent was Mary Kuhn of Aspinwall, Pa., the winner to meet the victor in the tilt between Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, Mo., and Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, Calif.

Maroons Better, Badgers are Told

Wisconsin Frosh Use Chicago Plays in Extended Workout

Madison—(U)—Freshman Coach Russ Rippe returned from his scouting trip to Chicago with reports that the Maroons are a better team than last year.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher accordingly put his University of Wisconsin squad through a long workout yesterday giving them an idea of what to expect Saturday. Freshmen demonstrated Maroon plays.

A punting drill took up a good share of the afternoon. Bronko Maleszewski, Ralph Mueller and Ed Hartman had most success. Ends were instructed how to go down under kicks.

Stuhldreher announced he would keep Eddie Misiak, Milwaukee halfback and one of the team's leading passers, on the sidelines until definite word comes from Big Ten headquarters as to his eligibility. The Milwaukee youth, out last year due to a gall bladder operation, took a reduced schedule thereafter.

Today the squad will receive the most intensive scrimmage of the week. Both offensive and defensive work will be featured.

NEW YORK—(U)—This is the gigantic day, barring fire or flood, when all normal activities traditionally cease for a couple of hours in the afternoon and the mortality rate among grandmothers leaps out of sight.

The simple, unvarnished truth is that the New York Giants, of Harlem, and the New York Yankees, of the Bronx, are meeting in the latter's handsome, commodious park in the first game of the world series.

Best advance indications put the crowd between 50,000 and 60,000, somewhat short of the record of 69,600 the same clubs set last year when the Yankees won four out of six games.

Vikes Scrimmage With Freshmen

Badly in Need of More Candidates: Highs in Light Drill

Lawrence college gridders tangled with the freshmen last evening at Whiting field as Coach Paul Derr worked the Vikings until long after dark. The Vikes will play Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., here Saturday afternoon in a Midwest conference game.

The Vikes presented a rather battered squad. Dick Garvey, center, was kept out of play because of an injury. Bob Arthur, tackle, has a bad knee and his prospects of playing Saturday are slim. Novakofski's side still bothers him and he didn't practice. Vande Walle still hobbles on his bad foot and no chances could be taken with Masterson's car.

The injuries leave the Vikes so badly depleted that Coach Derr has been working any man who showed even fair possibilities at the various spots.

If the Vikes could be bolstered by the several backs and one or two linemen who are in school but who haven't turned out for football, they might be a better squad. However, the missing gentlemen have shown no inclination.

Appleton High school backs and ends worked on passes and punts again with the linemen working on blocks. Late in the evening there was a brief scrimmage with most of the work being done by reserve talent. The Terrors go to Manitowish Saturday afternoon.

White Sox, Cubs Begin City Series at Chicago

Chicago—(U)—Chicago's White Sox go back to work today on their most prized winning streak—an unfinished run of nine straight victories over the National League Cubs in City series baseball strife.

Packers Plan to Wallop Cardinals

Will Avenge Recent Defeat When Teams Clash Sunday

GREEN BAY—Spoiling for revenge, and with their gridiron spirits again aroused to a championship fever, the Green Bay Packers are preparing this week to swarm all over the Chicago Cardinals in the National Professional Football league game at State Fair park, Milwaukee, this Sunday. The game will start at 2 p.m.

The Cardinals it was who handed the Packers their initial defeat of the 1937 season, and indications are the Cardinals will have a much more difficult task repeating the performance this week. The score of the previous game was 14 to 7, Rose Up Against Detroit.

Following the Cardinal victory at Green Bay the Chicago Bears administered a 14 to 2 defeat to the Packers, all of which so irked the pro league champions that they rose up last Sunday to overwhelm the Detroit Lions, doped as the best team in the circuit, 26 to 6.

The Packers are now back in a fighting mood after playing those first two lackadaisical games. More than that they will really be at a physical peak for the Cardinal game for the first time this season. Arnie Herber, star passer injured in the All-Star game, got into the Detroit game last Sunday for a few minutes, but he hadn't reached peak effectiveness yet, and it is thought he will be ready for 60 minutes duty Sunday if necessary.

The Cardinals are not a team to be taken lightly, however. A freshman end on the Chicago team is reason enough to fear the club, Gaynell Tinsley. All-American from Louisiana State. Tinsley is making a great bid for All-American pro rating his first year in the game. The duel between Tinsley and the Packers' great Don Hutson is one of the features of Sunday's game.

Develop Running Attack

In Herber's absence the Packers have developed a great running attack which was principally responsible for the swamping of Detroit. With Herber back in to throw passes to boot, the Packer offense is expected to hit a new high for the season against the Cardinals Sunday.

The universal cry of all of the members of the Packer squad now is, "The rest of the games undefeated." The Packers are far from being out of the title race, which they hope to prove this weekend.

Kimberly High to Oppose St. John

Village Teams Clash Saturday Afternoon at Little Chute

Kimberly—The Kimberly High school gridder will meet St. John high at Little Chute, Saturday afternoon. Coach Ray Hamann has his squad out every afternoon practicing through regular workouts and practicing new plays as the local team prepares for another win.

The Papermakers still are undefeated. In three starts they have won two games and played a scoreless tie with Menasha last week. The Little Chute gridder lost last Sunday to St. John's Cathedral, Milwaukee, 14 to 6, and now have a win, a tie and one defeat.

A large delegation of Kimberly fans are planning to see the game Saturday. Discussion between citizens of the two towns is running hot. The Papermakers defeated the Hollanders last year and fans there are looking forward to the team evening this.

The remaining games for the Papermakers include one home game and two away. Chilton comes here Oct. 15 while the Papermakers will travel to Marion on Oct. 22. On Oct. 29 they will journey to Pulaski for a game.

Cincinnati Reds Will Rebuild Entire Squad

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Plenty of deals being cooked up here as the baseball clans gather. Looks like the biggest winter turn-over in years. . . . One choice tidbit is that Cincinnati is out to get Bill McKechnie of the Bees as manager, with Gabby Hartnett and Jimmy Wilson also in the running. . . . Reds to rebuild from the ground up. . . . Eleven of this year's team re-signed, but none of the others have even been approached. . . . Latter list includes such big shots as Ernie Lombardi, Gene Schott and Paul Derringer.

One burned up gent is Philip K. Wickey, owner of the Cubs. He didn't bother to stay home and root for his team in the City series against the White Sox. . . . Greb Scores K.O. In Fourth Round

Knocks George to Floor Five Times, Referee Stops Fight

Milwaukee—(AP)—Larry Greb, hard punching Milwaukee lightweight, scored a 4-round technical knockout victory over Al George, Columbus, O., in a scheduled 10-round windup to a boxing show here last night.

Greb battered George to the canvas five times before referee Julius Fidler called a halt.

Greb weighed 135, one-half pound less than his opponent.

Holman Williams, 143, Chicago, stopped Pennah Randolachi, 143, Mexico City, in the third round of the 8-round semi-windup.

Baby Face Brees, 138, Manhattan, Kas., outpointed Joe Richards, 140, Chicago, in six rounds; Toots Bernstein, 152, Milwaukee, won a 6-round decision over Chester Rudy, 135, Hollywood, Calif., and John Fairchild, 129, beat Eddie Regan, 134, Waukesha, Wis., in four rounds.

THEY FORM KAUKAUNA'S SENSATIONAL BACKFIELD COMBINATION

Sporting two wins that showed them a fast squad inclined to take full advantage of the breaks, Kaukauna High school footballers have joined the top teams in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference. Much of the accomplishment of the Kaws is due to the work of the four boys shown above, the first string backfield. The boys are, left to right, Carl Kobussen, Captain Bill McCormick, Carl Giordana and Bill Peterson. Next Saturday the Kaws play Menasha St. Mary's at Kaukauna. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Green Bay East Center Banned

Norman Kolbus Declared Ineligible Under W. I. A. A. Rules

Marinette—Norman Kolbus, Green Bay East High school center, has been declared ineligible to compete at that school for the remainder of his high school athletic career, Paul F. Neversman, secretary of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association, announced here yesterday.

Kolbus was declared ineligible by the W. I. A. A. rule which stipulates that no boy who was not enrolled in a given high school at the time his family moved from that school district may compete in that district.

Norman and his older brother, Donald Kolbus, both are enrolled at East high school. After Donald entered East, but before Norman reached the ninth grade, their parents moved to the West Side in Green Bay, where they now reside. This means that while Donald may finish his athletic career at East, Norman may not compete for that school, Neversman pointed out.

"This is one of our oldest rules," he stated. "We at first believed that the younger Kolbus was eligible at East, because of a misinterpretation of a letter on the subject received from East high. Later Green Bay West high questioned Kolbus' eligibility, and upon further communication with East we found that he had not entered high school at the time his family moved to the West Side. This makes him ineligible to play football or any other sport at East."

Looking to pay expenses. As a boy, he covered most of the world with his father.

Gordon McIntyre, Sports Editor, The Appleton Post-Crescent, Appleton, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir,

On next Friday and Saturday the Manitowoc Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the annual Lincoln High homecoming here in Manitowoc. We have chosen the Manitowoc Appleton football game as the climax to two days of homecoming revelry and would appreciate your giving us a bit in the Post-Crescent as we feel the many Manitowoc students enrolled at Lawrence would be interested.

The Manitowoc J.C.C. has been putting on Lincoln High homecomings for the past four years and have met with much success in the past. This year we have picked Appleton as the homecoming team as we feel that the brand of football always displayed by the Orange and Blue teams would be the best drawing card on the Lincoln home schedule.

On Friday evening, Oct. 8, we have planned a gigantic parade through the downtown section of Manitowoc, terminating with a huge bon-fire and pep meeting on the high school campus. There will be floats and three or four bands to liven up the evening's entertainment. An effort is being made to secure Don Hutson of the Packers as the principal speaker for the pep meeting.

We have tendered an invitation to Appleton high school to bring its band to Manitowoc for the game on Saturday and are looking forward to seeing them here.

As you no doubt know, we here in Manitowoc are looking forward to more success in the Fox River Valley for our Manitowoc football teams in the future and this homecoming, which will be one of the greatest civic affairs of the year, is to be the official welcoming for our new coaching staff at Lincoln. Nello Pacetti and Al Gueppe.

Very truly yours,

Charles J. Kelley, Chairman, Publicity Committee, 1937 Lincoln High Homecoming

Bob Kamps, who played with the Appleton Reds a couple of years ago, is going to town with the Los Angeles, Calif. city football team. The team is sponsored by the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. Kamps also starred with the Y's football team this summer and got a lot of publicity in newspapers there for four home runs in one game.

Oshkosh ice boat fans are gloating over Madison's bad luck. The other day a pyromaniac at Madison set fire to the barn in which Madison's Fritz and Miss Alice were stored. The boats were holders of the Hearst International trophy and the only two boats that Oshkosh's Flying Dutchman couldn't beat. So Oshkosh skippers are preparing to bring home the trophy next winter.

Fire Questionnaires Distributed at Schools

Kimberly—Fire Chief Alex Malcolm is distributing home fire prevention inspection questionnaires at both schools in connection with the National Fire Prevention week. In addition he is giving a talk at each school and expects to have his work completed Wednesday afternoon.

There are 22 questions on each blank which each child will fill out. The first part of the inspection blank contains the question for the child to answer in making the home inspection, a task that requires a thorough examination from attic to basement. Parents will assist the younger children in making the inspection and the report.

The second part of the blank contains suggestions which explain the various dangers found in the inspection. The blanks were made available through the Eastern Wisconsin Firemen's Safety League.

Thursday Tenth Anniversary of Mill Disaster

Kimberly—Thursday will be the tenth anniversary of the Kimberly mill disaster in which seven men lost their lives and a number of others were injured. On Oct. 7, 1927, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon the bleach beater room gave way, crumbling to earth. Shrieking screams soon brought a large crowd to the mill entrance, waiting for a report from those missing. It was necessary to rope off the entrance to the mill so that officials, doctors and nurses could get through without delay.

Traffic between Appleton and Kimberly was at a standstill as roads leading to the village were open only to official cars. After being trapped for more than fifteen hours, three men were rescued at 12:30 the next morning, two of them injured, B. Jansen and George Pocan walked out of their tightly jammed quarters which was hardly large enough for one person, while Chester Mauthe received a ruptured blood vessel in his leg, which later forced amputation of the leg below the knee.

The program consisted of talks on poetry by Mrs. Max Stieg and Miss Alice Faust. Mrs. Stieg traced the development of poetry from the early stages and illustrated her remarks by reading several poems. Miss Faust talked on modern trends in poetry.

Chapter Eight
Murder On the Nadja

TURNING to the porch of the sprawling store, Neill sat down at the end of the line of men taking their ease and enjoying their after-supper pipes. Sunburned fishermen mostly, in gum-boots and faded drill shirts. Neill learned that fishing was good and that pound nets were being set out in the bay. The trout had come earlier than was customary.

None of this was to his purpose, and he studied the yacht. Very smart and modern with her high sides and stubby funnel. Something under a hundred feet over all. She carried two boats on davits amidships, and he noted that one of them was gone. As darkness gathered it seemed odd to him that no lights showed in the cabins. The riding lights were up.

The man next to Neill was a tall fisherman with white hair and a complexion the color of beet juice. "That's a tidy little yacht wonder," Neill remarked to him.

"So you might say. She's the latest taper all right. But ugly as hell, if you're asking me."

"Is she owned hereabouts?"

"Nah! We got no toys like that down here. We're working people. New York man." He told Neill of the accident to the yacht's engine.

"Is the owner aboard?"

"Sure, he's aboard."

"I see they're dinghy is ashore."

"The crew just come in to go to the movies."

Neill grinned in hard satisfaction. Owner aboard, crew ashore. The

Council Adopts Agreement With Municipal Union

Proposal Altered to Let Schools, Utility Handle Own Problems

Kaukauna—The agreement presented for approval to the council several meetings ago by representatives of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Kaukauna local 130, was adopted last night. One change was made, the agreement being altered to provide for all grievances or wage adjustments pertaining to the school board or to the utility commission being taken up by those bodies.

A new agreement embodying this change will be given to the council for approval Oct. 19 with its ratification but a formality.

Under this agreement employees' seniority rights will begin at the time their pay started and a system of promotion through seniority and merit is set up. Employees will receive a week's vacation with pay each year, and when an employee is dismissed he will return to his position within one week without loss of seniority until final disposition of his case is made by the council. Under the agreement the employees also have the right to select a committee to meet with the heads of the department and budget committee to work out a satisfactory wage agreement.

Cooper Starts Debate

Alderman W. H. Cooper started discussion of the agreement, remarking that no provision was made for the exemption of office workers from the agreement. These were already under the jurisdiction of the utility commission and the Wisconsin Utility commission, Cooper added.

Mayor Lewis F. Nelson then suggested that matters concerning municipal employees of the union be referred to that committee or board having immediate jurisdiction, to which Alderman Staidl objected, saying the council should appoint a committee to which all matters would be referred.

Alderman Oscar Alger then brought out the fact that the city clerks have no union as yet and now is the time to organize in some manner, either joining the local 130 or affiliating with a union in another city. Alderman Cooper opposed this suggestion, speaking for the craft union, saying the clerks should get a charter and organize a local of their own in Kaukauna instead of joining local 130.

Union Head Talks

William Lambie, president of local 130, then took the floor and explained that the proposed agreement referred only to the board of public works, as it was that board that hired men and brought other matters before the council. Different agreements could be concluded with the board of education and the utilities commission, he said.

Alderman T. L. Seggelink moved the agreement be approved as just applying to street workers, the only class of city workers not under the board of education or the utilities commission, as the only solution the problem allowed. If the union representatives present did not wish this, Seggelink suggested the matter be laid over until the next council meeting. Lambie said the union men were tired of having it laid over, and requested five minutes to confer with the union representatives.

After the five minute interval, Cooper presented the amendment mentioned before, that all grievances or wage adjustments pertaining to other bodies should be handled by them, and in this form the agreement was approved.

The suggestion that the council purchase land on the west side of LaFollette park, the land now being known as Eden park, was made by the owner, Fred Wettengel. Wettengel brought out that years ago the council had voted to purchase the property to be used for school purposes but the purchase in some way or another fell through.

Wants To Sell Land

"I have had several opportunities to dispose of this property," Wettengel said, "but felt it should be bought by the city and added to LaFollette park. In 10 years Kaukauna's population will be 15,000 and maybe more." Wettengel prophesied, "and land for public buildings will not be available."

He also cited the new high school where land for the new high school had to be purchased on the outskirts of the city because of the short-sightedness of the council.

The matter of the land's purchase was referred to the board of public works to act as a committee whose appointment Wettengel requested. The price of the proposed acquisition would be its assessed value, Wettengel said. This amount was not disclosed.

An ordinance amending the Electrical Worker's code came before the council and was laid over until the Oct. 19 meeting.

The utilities commission reported that of several requests for street lights referred to them one had been granted, coming for an installation of the corner of George and Division streets. A petition was then presented asking that a light be installed on Patten road, the signers explaining that a heavy growth of trees on one side and pile piles on the other made vision difficult at night. This was granted.

A petition that the name of Tenth avenue be changed to avoid confusion with Tenth street was laid over. Another petition asking that the sidewalk on Tenth avenue between Whitney and Seventh street be completed was also laid over.

Kaukauna Eleven Points For Battle With W. DePere

Kaukauna—With the full squad back on the practice field yesterday Coach Paul E. Little turned once more to the task of preparing the team for the game at W. DePere Oct. 15, which will definitely put the Littlemen in or out of the running for the conference championship. There is still the game with St. Mary's of Menasha this Saturday, a non-conference affair, which Little by no means concedes to Kaukauna. But if the Kaws play at all the game they are capable of the Menashans will probably return home on the short end by one or more touchdowns.

Yesterday's practice was devoted to running what was mainly a signal practice, in which the substitutes were given particular attention. The Kaws are not strong in reserves and capable ones must be developed.

Kaukauna's main task in the contest at W. DePere will be to stop Connie Berken, DePere's star back, who has run away with every team he has faced this year. Coach Little will depend on a general improvement in line play between now and the game to take care of this fellow, and will not attempt to set up any special defense.

Special attention was given to kicking at the outset of the practice, with Peterson and Kobussen doing most of the punting and Lee Lambie practicing kick-offs.

Several more freshmen joined the squad today, making enough of them to lineup against the varsity for scrimmage.

In the ensuing play the varsity's attempts were ragged, and indications point to continued stiff work-out throughout the week. Several of the second stringers are improving to such an extent they may threaten some of the first team players, and Coach Little's lineup Saturday will be in doubt until game time.

Grade Eleven to Play at Appleton

St. Mary Gridders to Depend on Passes in First Game

Kaukauna—The St. Mary's school football team will open their season against the St. Mary's team of Appleton, Coach Jack Licht announced this morning. The game will be played at Pierce Park, in Appleton, Thursday afternoon.

The Kaukauna school's offense will be built around Willis Ranquette, Licht said, who specializes in forward passes. The team had a stroke of hard luck last week when Stuiber, star end who caught most of Ranquette's aeriels, was injured, but Licht expects Damro, a substitute for Stuiber, to do as well.

Ranquette's passes are not the only threat St. Mary's will offer, as Bob Donner is a good kicker and runner. The work of the line was especially praised by Coach Licht, both on defense and in opening holes for the St. Mary's backs.

Other games which will probably be played by the St. Mary's team include a return engagement with Appleton and contests with teams from Manitowoc, Kimberly, Onondaga and West DePere.

Speed Charges Head September Arrests

Kaukauna—Speeding was again the chief cause for arrests during the month of September, according to the report submitted by James E. McFadden, chief of police, to the council last night. Seven speeders were fined out of the 17 arrests made. Reckless driving and disorderly conduct each accounted for four cases; one person was arrested on a charge of drunken driving and one for failing to stop at an arterial.

Fines during the month were $260, disbursements $330. There is $138.70 pending.

situation was working out to his advantage.

Another man hearing them talking about the yacht, took up the tale. "The owner was in the store telephoning awhile ago. Fine-looking, big slicker; fresh-complected. Not surly. Didn't have a word to throw to a dog."

Neill took heart from this. If things were going badly with Fanning, so much the better.

"You're right he's a surly brute," said another. This was a lanky fellow with an innocent blue eye. Neill noticed that the others were inclined to make a butt of him. "I rowed out there with a mess of trout, thinking they'd be glad to buy some fresh fish," he said. "But when I came alongside the owner, he ordered me off. 'Get the hell away from here,' he says. 'I don't want any damned fish.'"

"That was manners," said another. "What did you say, Jake?"

"I says, 'Go to hell yourself you long-legged son-of-a-bitch! I'm as good as a man as you, and if you own a yacht, and if you'll come ashore, I'll prove it!'"

There was a general laugh.

"All right," the speaker went on. "I told you before and I tell you again there is some funny business aboard that yacht, and we ought to investigate it!"

More laughter.

"As If She Wanted Help"

"What do you mean, funny business?" asked Neill.

"I'll tell you, stranger. When I came alongside the yacht I was standing up in my skiff and I could look right into one of the portholes. All closed they was, warm as it is. And on the other side of the glass I seen a beautiful girl with bare arms and neck. Only seen her a second, but she nodded her head, and beckoned pitiful as if she wanted help real bad."

Neill's breast was suddenly lightened. Janet was aboard the yacht then! He had come to the right place. And she was not a willing passenger, either. That relieved his worst fear. He felt a gush of friendliness towards the speaker.

But he, it seemed, enjoyed no reputation for veracity among his mates. They laughed him down. "You're seeing things, Jake. You're wasted fishing. You ought to be one of these here, now, storywriters in the papers."

"All right! All right!" said Jake. "Some day you men will learn that I'm not as big a fool as you like to make out!"

When it became really dark and the vessels in the harbor were no longer sharply silhouetted against the water, Neill got up and strolled away. Each house along the harbor front had its little pier sticking out from the shore with one or more small boats moored to it, and he had it in mind to borrow one of these without asking.

He turned to the right because in that direction the shore road rose somewhat. Here the little piers were under the bank, and screened from observation. Climbing down the bank, he walked out on a pier and found a skiff with oars in her. He got in and, untying the rope, rowed quietly toward the yacht.

The water was as smooth as a mirror, and voices came from the shore with startling distinctness. On the porch of Longcope's they were still talking about fish. Every star in heaven was shining. No moon. This moon was near its end, Neill remembered. Wouldn't rise until near dawn.

When he drew alongside the yacht, he hailed her, not loud. There was no answer. Tying his skiff to the ladder, he climbed on deck and spoke again. No answer. There was something about the stillness of the little craft that chilled his blood. Where was Janet? He walked forward along the deck and aft again, sticking his head in the different doors and speaking. There was no movement, no sound in reply. Everything aboard was neat and shipshape. The silence was not absolute, for somewhere below he could hear the hum of a generator.

There were two deckhouses on the yacht. The forward house contained a luxurious little dining saloon, while the after house was merely the entrance to a companionway leading to the quarters below. Having satisfied himself that there was nobody forward, Neill switched on lights in the after house and went down the stairs with his heart rising in his throat. His instinct told him there was something very wrong aboard.

He found himself in a miniature saloon with doors forward and aft. The forward door admitted him to a comfortable sleeping cabin, empty. A man's belongings were scattered about. Fanning's? The after door was locked. It was a light door, and putting his shoulder against it, he burst it in.

A Dark Wet Stain

Switching on lights, he saw Prescott Fanning lying on the floor at his feet. There was a bullet hole in his forehead and a dark wet stain was slowly spreading through the rug under his head. Janet in her pretty evening dress was lying limply in an easy chair nearby. There was a crude smear of blood across her cheek. A gun lay on the floor beneath her hand, and a stale smell of gunpowder hung on the air.

Neill's heart stood still. He ran to the girl and flung his arms around her. Her body was warm; she breathed; there was no wound on her. Upon wiping her face, he saw that the blood was not hers. He crushed her to his breast, trembling in the reaction from his first terrible fear.

Leaving her for a moment, he dropped to his knees beside the body on the floor. Fanning was dead all right, but to Neill's astonishment there was still warmth in his body. If only he had come a few minutes sooner! He saw that the hole in his forehead was a wound of egress. He had been shot in the back of his head and the gun had been held so close that his hair was singed.

Neill glanced towards the door that he had burst in. Its key was on the inside. All the portholes were closed and fastened. To his mind there was only one possible explanation. Fanning had attacked Janet and she had shot him. Neill had no thought of blame for her; he appreciated her courage. Lucky that she had the gun. Where had she got it?

He carried her out into the saloon and laid her on a couch. There was a vacuum jug on a stand. He sprinkled water in her face and bathed her temples.

Meanwhile he had to make the greatest decision of his life. The trained sleuth in him said: She shot this man and we'll have to face it out together. She'll be acquitted of course. But the man in him thought of how she would be dragged through the mud—Janet whom he had always laughed at and loved for her delicate ways! And how after acquittal, fingers would forever point her out as a murderess. I don't care what the evidence is, the man in him said, she couldn't have done it. And I'm going to keep her under cover until I can prove it!

She opened her eyes and looked around so wildly and senselessly that Neill feared for her reason.

"Janet!" he murmured. "This is Neill. Don't you know me, dear?"

Recognition came into her eyes, and like a frightened child she flung her arms around his neck.

"Neill! Neill!"

"It's me, all right."

"You've come!" she murmured in a passion of relief. "I knew you'd come!"

He soothed her silently.

"What happened?" she asked.

"Let's not talk about it now, dear. I have you safe!"

"Oh, take me away from this horrible place!" she moaned. "Take me away! Take me away!"

Farm Prices of Livestock Much Higher in 1937

Milk Cows Bring More as a Result of Better Feed Supplies

Wisconsin farmers now are receiving much higher prices for livestock than a year ago, according to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

With better feed supplies on many Wisconsin farms, the prices received for milk cows has increased in recent months. Milk cow prices as reported by Wisconsin crop correspondents averaged $74 per head in September or $8 more than a year earlier. All prices of livestock are much higher. The farm prices of beef cattle averaged $6.80 per hundredweight in September compared with $5 a year ago. Veal calves are also higher, being reported at $9.20 per hundredweight or $1.60 above the farm price of last year.

With prospects for a smaller fall pig supply than a year ago, the crop reporting service says that hog prices averaged $10.60 per hundredweight last month. This is an increase of over 10 per cent compared with that reported for September of last year when the average farm price was $9.60.

Chicken prices have risen during the past few months and in September averaged about 17 cents per pound compared with 14 cents a year earlier. Sheep and lamb prices show increases above those reported a year ago. The farm prices of sheep averaged $3.50 per hundredweight and lamb prices averaged $8.90 in September, a year ago, sheep prices were reported at $2.75 per hundredweight and lambs at $7.70.

Driver Testing Equipment To be Shown in Appleton

Here is a distance judgment and vision machine, part of the scientific driver testing equipment, to be shown in Appleton three days starting Oct. 21. The machine measures how the motorist can judge distance and how well he can read signs. The equipment is a scientific means for finding a driver's faults.

Scientific driver testing equipment, now on a nationwide tour sponsored by the American Automobile association, will be shown in Appleton for three days starting Thursday, Oct. 21.

The equipment is being shown in Wisconsin during the next six weeks under auspices of the Wisconsin division, AAA and the Wisconsin State Highway Safety commission. Arrangements for the showing here are being made by the Outagamie County street and Highway Safety council.

From Madison the equipment will go on tour of the state, the schedule being arranged by West A. Burdick, director of safety with the Wisconsin Highway commission.

Tentative dates and cities to be visited on the state tour are Kenosha, Sept. 30; Racine, Oct. 4; Sheboygan, Oct. 7; Manitowoc, Oct. 11; Algoma, Oct. 14; Green Bay, Oct. 18; Appleton, Oct. 21; Wausau, Oct. 25; Ashland, Oct. 28; Superior, Nov. 1; Eau Claire, Nov. 4; arriving in LaCrosse on Nov. 8.

The tests enable motorists to check their driving habits as a means of learning driver faults that may jeopardize their own safety and that of others.

The equipment comprises a series of tests designed to meet situations that arise on the road.

Prior to development of this equipment drivers were without a scientific means of learning driving faults. As a result, many believed themselves to be good drivers when their safety and that of nervousness or some other factor contributing to faulty driving.

"Driveometer" Of particular value is the "driveometer" which simulates actual driving conditions. This is fitted up like an automobile with steering wheel, brake, clutch, gear shift and so on. In front of the driver is a roadway painted on a continuous revolving belt and a miniature car which is guided over the road by operating the steering wheel. The person taking the tests must keep the car on the road, observe traffic lights, change gears, back up and perfect all sorts of maneuvers. An automatic attachment registers the number of errors and checks the quickness of observation.

Persons making an unusually low grade on any of the machines are warned about that deficiency and told how they can guard against it in future driving.

In addition to uncovering individual driving faults, the nationwide tour of this equipment will furnish data concerning motorists as a whole. This material will be assembled and studied carefully and the findings should help to deal more intelligently with the traffic problem in the future, Burdick said.

Name First Play For Junior Group

High School Dramatists to Present "The Boy and the Pied Piper Forgot"

"The Boy and the Pied Piper Forgot," by Carl Holliday, will be the first in a series of 1-act plays to be presented by the Appleton High school Junior Play group, according to school authorities.
